LOYOLA UNIVERSITY

ERSITY

CHICAGO ILLINOIS

dedication

To Father James J. Mertz, S.J., on the occasion of his sixtieth year as a Jesuit, his fiftieth year in the classroom, the forty-sixth year of his priesthood, and his thirty-eighth year at Loyola University, the staff joyously and proudly dedicates the twenty-fifth volume of The Loyolan.

During those years, Father Mertz almost singlehandedly procured the funds for and planned the University's lovely and widely praised Madonna della Strada Chapel. In the classroom his unfailing liveliness, charm, and wit have endeared him to many generations of students of the classics. As a preacher, retreatmaster, and counselor his name is widespread in the midwest. To countless others he is known as a charming and loyal friend.

There is no one who so completely symbolizes and brings to mind Loyola University as Father James J. Mertz. May we witness his seventy-fifth anniversary as a Jesuit.

the moment - - -

The swift, fleeting measure of time by which men record the memories to cherish for a lifetime. These are the long-to-be remembered moments of a Loyola lifetime . . .

The academic moments of inquiry, understanding, intellectual fulfillment. The spiritual moments when the heart instinctively seeks for God. The cultural moments when great literature, art, and music contribute to the elevation of the soul.

The happy moments of good will, merriment, conviviality; the sad moments of shared disappointments, sorrows, and unexpected failure.

ISTRATION

From his youth, the Very Rev. James F. Maguire, S.J. has been influenced by Jesuit ideals. Born in 1904 on Chicago's West Side, across the street from St. Ignatius High School, he later received his secondary education at that school.

Following his graduation in 1922, Fr. Maguire entered the Jesuit novitiate at Florissant, Missouri; after being ordained in 1935, he received his A.B. and M.A. degrees from St. Louis University. After a year of teaching at the University of Detroit High School, he held a number of administrative positions, including the presidency of St. Xavier High School, the rectorship of West Baden College, and the presidency of Xavier University.

In 1955, Father Maguire returned to Chicago to assume the presidency of Loyola University.

vice president and dean of faculties

Returning also, not only to his city, but also to the school from which he graduated, is the Rev. Robert W. Mulligan, S.J. Father Mulligan was born on October 11, 1916, and was a member of St. Margaret Mary parish in Chicago. His educational training includes graduation from both Loyola Academy and Loyola University, followed by study abroad.

Father Mulligan was ordained to the priesthood in September, 1937. After joining the Philosophy Department at Loyola, he was appointed Department Chairman in 1955. In 1958, he was named Vice-President and Dean of Faculties, his present position.

vice president in charge of development

After attaining degrees from both Loyola and DePaul Universities, W. Daniel Conroyd, was associated with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Montgomery Ward and Company. In 1945, he returned to Loyola as Director of Public Relations and then as Administrative Assistant to the President.

In 1957, he was named Vice-President for Development and Public Relations. In this capacity he coordinates and directs Loyola's fund-raising drive program, public relations program, and alumni activities.

vice president and business manager

Thomas F. Hawkins, a graduate of Northwestern and Loyola Universities, was promoted to Vice-President in 1956. Previously, Mr. Hawkins served as Loyola's Business Manager for over five years.

Besides his educational training in business administration, Mr. Hawkins' practical experience includes employment as Treasurer and Comptroller of the Nochman Corporation. In addition, he served as Assistant Comptroller of Esquire, Inc. and Assistant Treasurer of the H. A. Brassert Company.

Sitting as the Board of Trustees, these nine Jesuit Fathers guide the destinies of Loyola University. Chaired by the University President, the Very Reverend James F. Maguire, S.J., the Board is the governing body of the institution. Its principal duties include the making of contracts and affiliation agreements, formulation of University policy, appointment of officers of the school, setting of fees and tuition, and the conferring of certificates, honors and academic degrees.

estate planning executive committee

The Estate Planning Executive Committee is dedicated to the future needs of educational progress. It is evident that in its formation was held the assurance of education of our youth for generations to come. It has for its purpose the task of making known to alumni and friends of Loyola University the bequest opportunities available. For example, the committee has organized for the University several plans to offer for investment: wills, gifts from capital, revocable trusts, irrevocable trusts, and testamentary trusts. In addition, the bequest may be unrestricted or directed to scholarships, buildings, professorships, research, or cultural activities. It is then, truly the creation of a Living Estate ever concerned with an advancing Loyola.

businessmen for loyola

Without such assistance as is currently being rendered by Businessmen for Loyola University, no private educational institution such as ours could long survive. Through its operations, BMLU has successfully enlisted the financial support from many Chicago corporations since its inception in 1955.

Over the years more than $1,100,000 has been channeled into added funds for teachers' salaries. This year's goal, under the direction of Robert E. Joyce, President of the Chicago Seven-Up Bottling Company, is to secure contributions totaling $400,000. The vice-chairman of BMLU is John M. Smith Jr., president of Inland Steel. Certainly the activities and accomplishments of BMLU are a vital asset to Loyola life.

The Office of the Dean of Students represents the University Committee of Student Activities which is headed by the Dean of Students, Harry L. McCloskey. This committee sets and regulates policies pertaining to all student organizations with the exception of religious organizations and the over-all student organization of the individual colleges and schools.

In addition to being chairman of this committee, Harry McCloskey acts as coordinator of the various programs of the Office of the Dean of Students which includes the student welfare program.

Mariette LeBlanc, the Dean of Women, supervises the activities and welfare pertaining to all women students of the university. Besides serving as secretary to the Committee on Student Activities, Miss LeBlanc is concerned with counseling women students, assisting them in the formation of new activities, and administering the women's residence hall.

Joan Vaccaro, the Assistant Dean of Women, assists Miss LeBlanc in the counseling of women students and coordinates undergraduate women's activities. She is also the Director of the Coed Club and housing director for university libraries

The library has been one of the most progressive departments at Loyola during the past year. Under the head librarian, James C. Cox, it has grown since its founding both in quantity and quality; and, with a view towards the future, this growth is just the beginning.

The University contains five libraries: the Elizabeth Cudahy Memorial Library on Lake Shore Campus, the Lewis Towers Library, and the Medical, Dental, and Law Libraries. Salient is the fact that the libraries serve all the students, which provides an unlimited field for research. During 1961, the library's accumulation of books has grown rapidly.

parents associates of loyola

Established in the spring of 1957, the specific purpose of Parents Associates of Loyola is to encourage the parents of high school seniors to talk to their sons and daughters about Loyola and the benefits of a Jesuit education. PAL accomplishes its end by appointing parents of present Loyola students to contact the parents of high school seniors. The Parents Associates contend that many questions of a personal nature, questions regarding Loyola's tuition, its educational programs, and its facilities, can be answered most effectively informally; hence PAL's determination to develop a personal touch through the home visits of its workers.

Under the general chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Pierce, PAL operated under a three-fold program: social activities, fund-raising drive, and admissions program.

The social program, directed by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. McCarthy, included three annual events: a reception for freshman parents, a Christmas party, and a dinner party in April. To help make up the difference between the tuition paid by students and the actual cost of education, PAL members have solicited funds from fellow Loyola parents for the specific purpose of raising faculty salaries. Last spring, 257 PAL couples received 630 pledges totaling over $20,500. By means of this annual program, headed this year by Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Pallasch, Loyola will continue to maintain faculty salaries at a scale comparable to that of larger universities.

The final function of PAL is the admissions program, this year under the chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice McCarthy. Its key feature is personal counseling, and through this the members of PAL aim to increase the number of qualified students who apply for admission to the University. This year over 3,100 parents were contacted. This program must receive at least partial credit for an astonishing 44% increase in freshman enrollment this year.

students associates of loyola

Organized in 1956, the Student Associates of Loyola has matured into one of the most important organizations in the University. SAL has one goal: the advancement of Loyola University. The work of SAL is gigantic, but its results are productive.

This year's program has progressed to unprecedented heights in accomplishment, for it has resulted in a 100% increase over last year's total contacts of Chicagoland's high school seniors. This means that better than 2,800 persons at the secondary education level have been informed of the many opportunities which the University can offer to its students. More than any other organization at Loyola, SAL gives its members an opportunity to render direct service to the University.

The Executive Committee, the governing body, is composed of representatives from the sororities, fraternities, academic societies, and independents from both campuses. Embodied in this group is the spirit, diligence, and perseverance that has made SAL what it is today.

Because of the large measure of its success, SAL is beginning to enlarge its scope of contact. With the adoption of the men's and women's dorms into its membership, SAL has inaugurated new procedures, giving it the facilities of reaching students in distant places by employing the efforts of out-of-town students in their home towns.

According to Larry Gerber, the general chairman of SAL this year: "SAL has become firmly established as a key student organization. The importance of its goals is self-evident, but these goals could never have been reached without the great support which it received from students and organizations."

graduate school

Graduate students gather in the library to discuss classroom techniques and the development of new theories in education.

The primary end of a school is the education of the student; the primary end of the Graduate School is the metamorphosis of the student into a scholar. To achieve this development, the graduate must unite a sense of independence with an unquenchable intellectual thirst stemming from a deep love of and a compelling interest in knowledge, especially for its own sake.

On August 15, 1946, the Rev. Stewart E. Dollard, S. J. became the dean of the Graduate School, the fourth dean to assume that office since its inception in 1926. Dr. Paul Kiniery, the assistant dean, was appointed to that position in 1932. From the establishment of the Graduate School, its objectives have not changed: the integration of scientific, literary, and cultural training with a sound philosophy of life based on Catholic principles of correct thinking and correct living.

The Graduate School is a school of arts and sciences.

The Master of Education and the Master of Arts degrees are awarded in classics, education, English, history, mathematics, philosophy, psychology, sociology, and Spanish.

The Master of Science degree may be obtained in anatomy, biochemistry, chemistry, microbiology, oral anatomy, pharmacology, and physiology. In addition, programs in most fields are provided, leading to the doctorate degree. Equipped with fundamental and specialized knowledge in their particular areas, those who have experienced graduate training are able to make worthwhile contributions in many areas.

Under the direction of the Rev. Richard A. Tischler, S.J., the Loyola University College of Arts and Sciences has maintained its purpose of developing its students through a broad Christian education forming them into the ideal stated by Pope Pius XI: "The true christian product of Christian education is the supernatural man who thinks, judges, and acts constantly and consistently in accordance with right reason illumined by the supernatural light of Christ's example and teaching."

The aims of the college are to enable students to better know and understand the principles of which they are composed: soul, body, and mind; to be able to distinguish between the erroneous and the true; and to fully develop the student's capacity for later happiness and success.

The Jesuit plan of education centers about the Liberal Arts College. This plan most truly prepares leaders of society by integrating general education, cultural improvement, and professional excellence with Catholic philosophy.

The Liberal Arts College in union with Christian ideals possess the ability to develop the "whole man," physically, socially, and spiritually. The basic Christian disciplines are stressed by this type of formative curriculum.

Liberal Arts training gives students training for a particular profession with knowledge beyond the particular interests of their field. It enables them to properly evaluate their own lives and to have the proper perspective in relation to their roles in our present culture.

In an effort to better serve the student body, the College of Arts and Sciences has expanded its staff. This expansion has brought greater efficiency in handling problems of the student body.

Personnel in the Dean's office are always ready to help students solve the many problems which arise during registration.

honors program

The Honors Program, under the direction of Rev. Carl Burlage, S.J., was established at Loyola University to provide students having high academic qualifications with the opportunities for intellectual achievement on an individualized basis. These students, through this program, enjoy personal contact with the members of the faculty and friendly association with students sharing similar intellectual interests and pursuits.

The honor students are given a fuller course of study and a special class section in English, history, logic, and metaphysics in the freshman and sophomore years. As upperclassmen, these students are provided with a fuller course of study in the major subject which each student has chosen.

Students may enter this program by invitation of the dean or of the director of honors students, or by their own request if they fulfill certain academic requirements. An augmentation to this year's program is the honors seminar. In this area scholarly discussions are held, delving into various controversial subjects with an eye toward an astute and logical evaluation of the problem under consideration.

This supplement to education reaches approximately 135 of the more gifted students of Loyola University, enabling them to attain the full fruits of an intensified and complete college education.

west baden college

West Baden College is an undergraduate college of Loyola University located in West Baden Springs, Indiana. With its School of Philosophy and School of Theology, West Baden College has become the training center for most of the Jesuits working in the Chicago area.

The School has been constituted a Pontifical Institute and is empowered to grant the canonical degree of Licentiate in Philosophy. The School of Theology has authority from the Sacred Congregation of Seminaries and University Studies to grant the degrees of Licentiate and Doctorate in Sacred Theology.

The main building at West Baden College is known as the "Eighth Wonder of the World." For decades it had been a favorite vacation hotel whose circular structure boasted the world's widest unsupported dome. Since then it has become a community of 254 Jesuits from many nations. Today, there are 111 Jesuits enrolled in the School of Theology and 85 in the School of Philosophy, along with an administration and faculty of 41 Jesuit priests and 18 lay brothers.

college of commerce

Loyola University, realizing the trend toward specialization in education, established the College of Commerce as a separate and distinct unit in 1922. Under the capable supervision of Dean J. Raymond Sheriff and the Assistant to the Dean, Thomas L. Borrelli, the curriculum is constantly under supervision to see that it meets the requirements of rapidly changing world conditions.

The professional objective of the College is the development of a student who will effectively meet the challenge of the business world. This development is carried out in the latter portion of the Commerce program. The basic principles of contemporary business are presented through a core program of required theoretical and analytical studies. The first half of the student's education is devoted to providing him with a background in the traditional liberal arts and sciences. The importance of this aspect of his education cannot be stressed enough. In his pursuit of truth every student must become acquainted with the areas of general knowledge in order to help him achieve a higher intellectual and spiritual development.

With such a program, the College of Commerce provides its students with a desire for continuing self-improvement so necessary for today's executive.

University College began its educational activities as a downtown unit of Loyola in 1914. Through the years it has become a distinct undergraduate and graduate college of the University, administered by its own dean.

The student personnel comprises high school graduates interested in completing a college program on a part-time basis in the evening, teachers in service who desire to earn credits towards a degree or a certificate, individuals seeking to develop their cultural or intellectual interests who are not necessarily working towards a college degree, men and women who wish to increase their value in employment and who seek advancement in business, and students not interested in college credit who attend classes to satisfy their particular educational and cultural interests.

The faculty of the University College includes the members of the day school faculty and is also supplemented by professional men and women for the purpose of offering to the students the best instruction available.

University College seeks to carry out the Jesuit educational plan in all programs. Whether in liberal arts, business administration, education, or science, the curriculum aims to form the many sides of human nature into a whole and complete man.

school of dentistry

DR. WILLIAM P. SCHOEN
Dean

The Loyola University School of Dentistry, the Chicago College of Dental Surgery founded in 1883, presently takes a commanding position among the dental schools of the world. The primary objective of the School is to educate the student in the general practice of dentistry combined with an education in the social, moral, and spiritual values of life. The faculty undertakes this objective and thoroughly trains the student in the diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of oral diseases and disorders of a direct dental relationship.

The faculty endeavors to expand the knowledge of dental science through research. Placing an important value on graduate study, both graduate and postgraduate programs are offered. Degrees in the field of periodontics, orthodontics, or oral surgery are offered in the graduate department.

Because of the School's location in the heart of the Chicago Medical Center, clinical material for the various departments is always sufficient to assure the student of a large and varied experience. The clinic provides services for those people who require professional dental care but are experiencing financial difficulties.

With more than seven thousand graduates, the School has an outstanding record. This fact is supported in the Chicagoland area where one out of every two dentists is a graduate of the Loyola University School of Dentistry. The School, with its present calibre of faculty and students, is building on its previous achievements in its efforts to fulfill the School's objectives. Thus, the School will continue its excellent tradition of leadership.

The School of Law of Loyola University, founded in September, 1908, and approved by the American Bar Association in 1925, confers the degrees of Juris Doctor and Bachelor of Laws. The method of instruction employed by the School enables the student to thoroughly prepare for the practice of law. The School's courses yield primary attention to the law of Illinois but do not treat it exclusively. The Law School strives to enlighten the minds of its students in regard to their professional and Christian duties. Not only civil but also social and religious duties must be fulfilled by the student both as a lawyer and as a man.

The School conducts both a day division and an evening division and has a present enrollment of over 300 students.

The fine education offered by the School of Law of Loyola University is made possible through continuous survey and revision of courses offered by the faculty and through their employment of the most proficient and most recent studies in law.

stritch school of medicine

The School advises advanced study and research which is accomplished through the postgraduate program. At the present, a significant research program is being conducted by the Pharmacology and Therapeutics Department and by the Biochemistry Department. Anatomy, microbiology, and physiology constitute the remainder of the School's extensive graduate program.

For professional, research, and educational purposes, Stritch operates main clinics at Mercy Hospital, Loretto Hospital, Lewis Memorial Maternity Hospital, and Cook County Hospital.

The high value placed on Christian ethics coupled with a medical education distinguishes Stritch School of Medicine from other medical schools. The faculty's ability to harbor this ideal in its students is the primary reason for the School's high rank among the leading medical schools of the world.

An integral part of the University, the School of Medicine has risen to the point of being one of the finest Catholic medical schools in the world. Founded in 1915 as the Loyola University School of Medicine and renamed the Stritch School of Medicine in April, 1948, it employs the most modern principles of medical education. Stritch not only strives for providing the student with a sound medical education but also attempts to foster in its students the ideals of high personal integrity, Christian ethics, and human charity.

The Medical School develops the student into a doctor who will practice his profession in the field of teaching, research, or community service. Since its establishment forty-five years ago, the School has trained over 6,700 men and women. Today, in the Chicagoland area, one out of four doctors is a graduate of Stritch.

school of nursing

Now entering into its twenty-sixth year of training and educating young women to assume their places in a world clamoring for help in its battle against sickness and disease, the Loyola School of Nursing has good reason to be proud of its nursing program.

This College, as all of the colleges of the University, endeavors to imbue its students not only with the technical skills necessary in the nursing profession, but also strives to instill in each individual a knowledge of herself, God, and her fellow man. This latter goal is achieved through the realization that in addition to the specialized concentration in nursing studies, a knowledge of the intellectual and philosophical aspects of man will prepare the future nurse more fully for a life devoted to the welfare of others. Having learned to know herself, she then enters into the service of her fellow man with a well-founded assurance of her capabilities and a deep Christ-like concern for the mentally and physically handicapped.

The School of Nursing offers two degree programs: a basic program designed for high school graduates which combines nurses' training with liberal arts studies, and a supplemental degree program which allows registered nurses to attain a degree by supplementing their three-year hospital diploma with college academic work.

Loyola's prominence as one of four collegiate nursing programs in Illinois is well substantiated when one considers the keen competition aspiring Nursing School applicants endure when seeking admission into the basic program.

institute of social and industrial relations

In 1941, Loyola University founded the Institute of Social and Industrial Relations which offers courses on a graduate level to students seeking preparation and advancement in the field of personnel administration, industrial relations, and public administration. It also offers courses to students seeking training as sociologists in industry or government, or as teachers of the social sciences.

Such a program recognizes the strategic importance of employer-employee relationships in modern industrial society. Practical experience in various fields is available to the student through the cooperation of companies, unions, and governmental agencies which devote their time and energy to introducing the students to the actual operation of various phases of industrial relations. This plan is called the Internship Program.

Five informal seminars are conducted for the part-time students who cannot take the Internship. These meetings give the student an opportunity to discuss the problems and practices of the various organizations with top-level men, and to supplement theoretical knowledge gained in the classroom.

school of social work

Social Workers seem to enjoy a case work lecture by Betty Begg.

Social workers aid troubled people in solving difficulties which stand in the way of a productive and satisfying life.

The Catholic social worker, in helping the underprivileged, the needy, the physically and mentally ill, recognizes the essential dignity of man and appreciates both his natural and supernatural qualities. He applies moral and ethical principles in freeing individuals from the obstacles which impede their continued growth. The social worker, then, assists in God's own work—the betterment of mankind.

But to be an effective social worker, principles must be blended with a scientific knowledge of human behavior, familiarity with social services, and, most important, an intense, warm interest in people.

The Loyola School of Social Work possesses a philosophy which permeates its entire curriculum. Using a framework of scholastic philosophy and Catholic theology the School integrates high professional competence with the ideals of Christian life.

The 179 students enrolled maintain a Student Council and school publication and, in addition, contribute articles to the other University publications.

An important aspect of social work studies is the seminar, where students meet with faculty members to discuss various problems of social work; seen here is a group meeting with Margaret Dwyer, one of the leading instructors in the school of social work.

child guidance center

Established in 1941 and located at Lewis Towers is the Loyola Center for Child Guidance and Psychological Service. Six full-time clinical psychologists and a staff of trained assistants serve the Center and cooperate closely with schools, pollsters, judges, and physicians.

The Center gives child guidance service of a psychological (non-psychiatric) nature, dealing with behavior problems, school adjustment, academic remedial measures, vocational guidance, interpretation of retardation and mental deficiency, pre-school training, and counseling on special-school placement. It has served more than eight thousand clients and their families, providing personal counseling of children, adolescents, and adults, with emphasis on the counseling of parents and the treatment of children's emotional problems by psychological therapy.

The Child Guidance Center provides excellent facilities for training of clinical psychologists. Clinical training is academically affiliated with the Graduate School. There are many soundproofed testing rooms, one-way view screens, tutoring rooms, a play therapy room, staff room, and recording room.

An encouraging look offers the child the incentive to continue on the path towards personal psychological adjustment.

home study department

Home Study, aptly described as "the department which brings the University to the student," was established at Loyola in 1921 and has achieved recognition as a most useful means of spreading widely the benefits of academic training. Home Study is the system in which students study courses by mail and receive full college credit upon completion of a course.

Correspondence is activated by a prospective student's application; in turn, the Home Study office sends this student his lesson plan, a sheet of instructions, and his instructor's name and address. The rest is between the student and his instructor.

As a member of the National University Extension Association, Loyola's Home Study courses are widely advertised through the N.U.E.A. Guide to Correspondence Studies. This makes it easy for the student to learn of the Home Study program. It also accounts for the fact that students from every state in the Union and some from the northernmost regions of Canada are enrolled in Home Study. Also among the students registered are servicemen who have received many benefits from this program.

Loyola University is one of only two Catholic universities offering a program of Home Study.

The Loyola Union, as stated in its Constitution, functions: "To unify the student body of Loyola University, to promote student unity in each school and college of the University, to provide liaison between the student body and the University, to support the religious program of the University, to encourage student academic and social societies, to govern itself according to sound principles of self-government, to form and uphold traditions, to voice student opinion, to create wholesome relations among student organizations, to enlarge university life for succeeding generations of students, and to meet the need of a greater Loyola student body and of a greater Loyola University."

The governing body of the Union is the Union Activities Board. This is a permanent, continual, and representative body which meets seven times a year. It is composed of representatives from each of the schools and colleges, and also represents the various student organizations found on the campus. From this group a chairman, vice-chairman, and secretary-treasurer are chosen. In addition to the students who are represented on this Board, a group of advisory members to the Board are chosen annually who represent the faculty and administration of Loyola University.

Each year the Loyola Union plans major activities for the entire student body. Its first program is that of the Freshman Invitational Dance, held in honor of all new students of the University. The Pow-Wow is the next event to take place and officially marks the beginning of the basketball season. This weekend is filled with the float parade, dances, a jazz concert, and a pushball contest. Between semesters, the Ski Trip was held.

The second semester brings on such activities as Charity Day, Orphan's Day, the Spring Festival, and, finally, the Senior Week program which is the highlight for all graduating seniors.

Michael Morawey (Tau Delta Phi), president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, and George Kollintzas, moderator.

The Interfraternity Council unites all of the undergraduate fraternities for the purpose of working conjunctively with the University and for undertaking the fraternities' problems and relations. The Interfraternity Council promotes the welfare of fraternities and helps to develop the Christian gentleman and his education.

The Council stresses the importance of fraternity rushing and pledging. This year it produced and sponsored the first Greek Week ever held at Loyola University. Greek Week serves as a general introduction to the fraternity system. The purpose of the activity was to acquaint freshmen with the various fraternities on campus in regard to who they are and what they do. Because of its success, the Interfraternity Council hopes to make Greek Week an annual event at Loyola.

The Council strives for harmony among its members and works for close association with the Loyola Union and the administration of the University.

The Intersorority Council was established to unite in a spirit of friendship and good will all undergraduate sororities, so that ideas may be exchanged and problems solved for the mutual benefit of all sorority members.

The Council acts as a supervisory and mediative board for all sorority members, with the power to regulate rushing and pledging methods, and to rule on sorority chapters seeking establishment at Loyola.

The Intersorority Council is composed of two representatives from each sorority and a chairman, secretary, and treasurer chosen from the main body. Joan Vaccaro acts as moderator.

The Council's busy schedule includes the I.S.C. Welcome Tea for freshmen women held each fall, and carrying out the activities of Greek Week and the joint rushing tea in early spring to better acquaint students and faculty with the role of the sorority woman on campus.

arts council

The Student Council of the College of Arts and Sciences is composed of representatives elected from a student body of approximately 3,000. It has as its purpose, as stated in its constitution: to initiate, organize, correlate, and support student activities. The Council acts to preserve student traditions and customs of the College and provides for effective means of cooperation between the faculty and students.

The Council is composed of fifteen students, presided over by a president, vice-president, treasurer, and secretary. In addition to the four Council officers, each class elects a president and vice-president to sit on the Council. A Nursing and Commerce student are appointed by their respective Councils to sit on the board.

Aside from the parties, speaker meetings, and other class-sponsored programs which are under the direction of respective class officers, the Student Council as a whole sponsors: Freshman Orientation, the Beanie Bounce, the Arts Council Mixer, the Student Directory, production affairs for the Variety Show, and the Mardi Gras Masque. In cooperation with the Commerce Council, the Arts Council publishes The Undergrad.

These activities are the efforts of the Council which have led to its advancement and success.

commerce council

This past year has been a most successful one for the Commerce Council. The Council, as a mediator between the administration of the University and the students of the College of Commerce, has held a series of programs and organized activities designed to fulfill its purposes.

The officers of the Council include the presidents of the four classes who become president, vice-president, treasurer, and secretary according to class priority.

Under the direction of these officers the Council sponsors: freshman counseling, panel discussion programs, the Commerce Council Mixer, the Sno-Ball Dance, class parties, the Honors Night Dinner Dance, Freshman Orientation, the Student Directory, and the business areas of the Variety Show. In cooperation with the Arts Council, the Commerce Council publishes The Undergrad. The Commerce Council has, this year, instituted its newest program, a get-together for recent graduates of the College of Commerce.

These activities are evidence of the wishes of the Council to achieve and maintain its purposes.

nursing councils

The Association of the Basic Students of the Loyola University School of Nursing, better known as the Nursing Council, endeavors to encourage unity and cooperation among the members of the Association; to help members of the Association to develop the mental, spiritual, and professional qualities necessary for the practice of nursing in today's society; to promote participation in the student activities of the University and local, state, and national student nursing associations; to aid members of the Association in the formation and development of skills in student government and encouragement of student affairs.

The Council schedules various events throughout the year to develop necessary qualities for the student nurse in supplementing her basic training. These include: a spring prom, Nursing Council Valentine Party, and various charity projects.

Through these programs the Council aims to serve the more than 200 Loyola student nurses.

medical school council

The Student Council of Stritch School of Medicine of Loyola University as a student governing body encompasses four basic purposes. These are: to establish unity between the students and the administration, to encourage extracurricular activities, to act as liaison between students and administration, and to foster and maintain the principles of the medical profession in the student body.

The composition of the Council, which is moderated by Fr. John Bieri, S.J., consists of representatives from the student body, the individual classes, two fraternities, the Student American Medical Association, and St. Luke's Guild.

The Council's primary activity is St. Luke's Day which is celebrated annually on October 18th. At a morning convocation outstanding students are recognized and at the evening faculty-student dinner dance, deserving faculty members are given awards.

Although the Council is basically interested in the field of medicine, it succeeds in fulfilling the needs of the students in university life.

dental school council

The Student Council of the School of Dentistry was created by the student body with the aid and cooperation of the faculty, and approved by the president and trustees of the Loyola Union for the purpose of developing a broader cultural, social, and moral atmosphere and closer unity among the members of the Dental School. It is composed of fourteen members: two representatives from each class and one representative from each of the fraternities.

The Student Council presides over class elections, fraternity rushing and pledging, and all organized student activities. It also sponsors the Winter Formal Dance, the Dental School Christmas Show, the Dental School News, and the Dental School Choir under the direction of Mr. Carter Francis.

These activities sponsored by the Council are manifestations of the efforts of student leaders to fulfill the goals set for the Student Council.

student bar association

Organized to unify the administration of student affairs and extra-curricular activity in the School of Law, the Student Bar Association of Loyola University furnishes the fledgling attorney with a variety of professional outlets as well as providing an area of social life with fellow professional men. Every student in the Law School is a member of the association.

The Student Bar Association is modeled after the American Bar Association, and thus it enables the members to acquire professional skills and to maintain the dignity of the law profession.

The organization's government is carried on by a board of governors, composed of four, together with the members of a constitutionally prescribed committee. Officers are elected at the beginning of the academic year, and the newly elected president appoints members of the association to the various committees.

social work council

The Student Council of the Loyola University School of Social Work is composed of four members elected from each class. The Council meets monthly with a faculty advisor. There are three main spheres of activity which are the concern of the members of the Student Council: religious, professional, and social.

The Student Council arranges for an annual day of recollection for members of the student body and faculty. Another major religious function sponsored by the Council is the annual retreat.

Under the sponsorship of the Student Council monthly meetings of the first year students are held. Various speakers are invited to discuss topics related to first year courses.

The Student Council sponsors a wide range of social activities. These include preparations for orientation week and a party given for the June graduates.

university college council

The evening school student through his attendance at University College automatically belongs to the Student Association of the University College of Loyola University. From this association, the University College Student Council is formed. Through cooperation with the University Administration, the Student Council seeks to activate the evening school student to partake in extra-curricular activity that will serve a two fold purpose of interest to both the student and to the University. In this manner the Council seeks to bring the benefits of self-government to the evening school student body.

The atmosphere of the evening school campus differs significantly from any other campus on the University. The Council realizes this difference and tries to maintain policies and activities that reflect the character of its constituency. The Council tries to bring its points to the student through direct contact. It assists Dean Richard A. Matre and his staff at the time of registration. A program called the Dean's Coffee Hour is sponsored by the Student Council at the beginning of each semester. The Council invites all new students and anyone else who is interested to attend this social orientation program. The administrative program is presented by a representative of the Dean's office. Religious facilities available to the evening school student are explained by the chaplain.

Social programs are presented by the various evening school organizations, and privileges of the evening school student as a student of Loyola are explained.

women's dormitory councils

Representing students in the two University residence halls are the Delaware and Stebler Dorm Councils. These both work to enforce dormitory regulations and plan social activities.

Delaware Hall has been a Loyola dorm since 1956 and at present has sixty residents. Donna Collinson, who is from Canada, is Dorm Council President, and Mary Bergan is the Vice-president. Charlene Rettig is Secretary; Stephanie Siu, a native of Hawaii, is Treasurer. Social Chairman is Mary Fran Cogger. Delaware students can boast of a dormitory average of 2.7.

Opened only this past September, Stebler Hall has accommodations for eighty girls. Officers of the Stebler Dorm Council are: Missy Cavender, President; Dottie Zale, Vice-president; Judy Brinkman, Secretary; and Mickey Dooling, Treasurer. Maureen McMahon is Social Chairman. The average grade point for Stebler Hall residents is 2.6.

Both dormitories have participated in University social activities, including decorations for Pow-Wow, entrance of a candidate in the Miss Loyola Contest, and a between semester "Final Fling" party.

The Loyola Hall Dorm Council is the student governing body of the 360 residents of the Hall. The Council's function is to do all that it can to provide the residents of the Hall with those conditions which will make their stay more beneficial to themselves and, in turn, more beneficial to the University. With this in mind, the Council provides an active social schedule which this year included more than a half dozen mixers with the girls of area schools as well as Loyola coeds as guests.

In order to become as closely united with the University's functions as possible, the Council for the first time this year, participated in the popular "Ugly Man" and "Miss Loyola" contests. The spirit of the dorm residents became evident as the year progressed and came to a peak the night before the Pow-Wow celebration, when the hall's animated house decoration developed a short circuit and was destroyed by fire. The Hall residents, under the leadership of their Council, quickly came to the rescue and in less than twelve hours of continuous work, managed to put together a new house decoration which won first place in the Pow-Wow judging. At the same time, members of the Council handled the bonfire for Pow-Wow weekend, which for the first time in three years, came off as scheduled.

The dorm spirit continued through the basketball season and brought about the inauguration of the bus trips to the stadium basketball games, which became one of the most successful programs of this year's Council.

Inside the dorm, the Council acts as a liaison between those various groups which service the dorm and at the same time serves as an opinion group for the administration. However, all the programs sponsored by the Council are completely under its jurisdiction and control.

In the interest of its students, the Council is presently waging a campaign to allow for the seating of a Dorm Council member on the Union Activities Board. The Council members have also spent a considerable amount of time this year campaigning for more workable schedules regarding vacations and retreats in the future school calendars.

Besides the social programs mentioned, the Council presents a program during freshman week for new residents which includes a get-acquainted mixer and a special supper. A special supper honoring the freshman and varsity basketball players and the annual dorm picnic, which this year was held at the Indiana Dunes, rounds out the school calendar. But the Loyola Hall Council is not entirely involved in politics and social activities. A nightly rosary and Sunday benediction in the dorm chapel is held under the auspices of the Council, and, in the academic realm, the first semester average of all residents was a healthy 2.77.

blue key national honor fraternity

Blue Key National Honor Fraternity was founded at the University of Florida in 1924. Since that time, it has come to be accepted as the leadership equivalent of scholarly Phi Beta Kappa. The organization now boasts a total membership of more than 35,000.

Loyola's chapter of Blue Key was established in 1926 through the efforts of the Rev. Robert C. Hartnett, S.J., Dr. William P. Schoen, and Dr. Paul S. Lietz.

Five years ago, the local chapter was reorganized as a service group designed to assist the administration and faculty, and to support and encourage all student organizations. Blue Key members have been appointed permanent student marshals for all Convocations and Commencements, and have represented the Dean of Admissions in the Chicago area high schools for the recruitment of new students.

The fraternity represents the elite of Loyola's student leaders. Its membership includes the presidents of most undergraduate fraternities, the president of the Student Union, various council presidents, and the recognized leaders of Loyola's many organizations.

Each year the Blue Key chapter selects and bestows an award on the Faculty Man of the Year and the student groups which have most distinguished themselves in the social, academic, and cultural fields.

The new members were initiated at the Pick-Congress Hotel this year. Among those initiated was the Very Rev. James F. Maguire, S.J., President of the University.

who's who among students in american universities and colleges

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges was first published for the school year 1934-35. This year marks the third time that Loyola University has participated in this national recognition organization.

Selection for the organization is based upon a student's scholarship, his leadership, his cooperation in educational and extracurricular activities, and his promise of future usefulness. Each institution participating is assigned a separate quota large enough to give a well-rounded representation of the student body, but small enough to confine nominations to an exceptional group of students.

alpha sigma nu

Alpha Sigma Nu was founded at Marquette University in 1915 by the Rev. John A. Danihy, S.J. The Society continued as a local organization until 1921 when Creighton University was invited to join, and a chapter was installed there on December 18, 1921.

The organization opened its Loyola Chapter in 1939. At the present time, there are thirty Jesuit colleges and universities in membership. Since its beginning at Loyola, over 300 alumni of the fraternity have filled positions which reflect the high esteem of their colleagues in the professions and in the world of business.

A student, to be eligible for membership in the fraternity, must rank in the upper twenty-five per cent of his class, and must, in addition, demonstrate a devotion to scholarship, a loyalty to principle, and a capacity for service of the highest order. Men are inducted into the organization after having been chosen by the President of the University on the nomination of the Deans and Alpha Sigma Nu members.

The officers of the organization during the current year were Richard W. Bock, President; John J. McHugh, Vice-president; Daniel W. Plaszek, Secretary; and Robert Williams, Treasurer.

Alpha Sigma Nu, in addition to giving recognition to the outstanding qualities of its members, actively assists their continued development both within the University and the world beyond it.

circumference

Circumference, the Women's Leadership Honor sorority, was established at Loyola in 1958 and has approximately forty members. Primarily a service organization, Circumference is intended to honor those students who have demonstrated their leadership, scholarship, and service to the University.

In order to be eligible for nomination to Circumference, a girl must be a junior. She must have at least a 2.5 cumulative average, be a member of two or more Loyola organizations, and hold office in at least two organizations. She must be nominated by an academic dean or a moderator of a student organization, and must then be voted in by a minimum of three-fourths of the membership.

Members of Circumference include students in all undergraduate divisions of the University: Arts, Commerce, and Nursing—both regular and supplemental. The girls often serve as hostesses or usherettes at University functions.

The emblem worn by Circumference members is a key faced with two intertwining circles; one containing the torch of knowledge, the other the gavel of leadership.

Moderator of Circumference is Miss Mariette LeBlanc, Dean of Women.

delta sigma rho

Delta Sigma Rho was founded in Chicago, Illinois, in 1906. It is the oldest honorary fraternity in the speech field in the United States. Its purpose was and still is to give recognition to those students outstanding in forensic ability. The five-pointed star found on the Delta Sigma Rho key symbolizes those qualities which are necessary for a fine public speaker: thought, conviction, self-control, truth, and courage.

Delta Sigma Rho is relatively new at Loyola University, a chapter having been installed February 14, 1960. Its newest members were inducted on Sunday, March 12, 1961. They include: the Rev. Robert C. Hartnett, S.J., Andrew Leahy, Frank Covey, John Fernandez, Mary Lee Cullen, Kenneth Feit, and Timothy Materer.

Delta Sigma Rho is at present developing a plan to support public speaking in many different areas at Loyola University.

Recognizing the great demands made upon student leaders and the value of the services which such students perform for Loyola, the Loyolan inaugurated, in 1959, the practice of presenting awards to nine graduates who have distinguished themselves by their leadership in the university.

To select the recipients of the awards, an independent committee of students and faculty was selected on the basis of impartiality and wide knowledge of the student body. To help the committee in its selection, the moderators of the various student organizations, the deans of the university, and certain administrators were asked to submit nominations for students they considered eligible for the awards.

The editorial board of the Loyolan presented the awards at the annual Blue Key Dinner Dance at the Pick-Congress Hotel.

Phi Sigma Tau is the national honor society for college men and women interested in philosophy. It is comprised of twenty-five chapters. Loyola University is one of only two Catholic universities to have a chapter.

Loyola's chapter of Phi Sigma Tau was established in 1955. Its membership today is comprised of fifty students who have been invited to join the society by the Deans of Loyola's colleges.

The organization is designed to serve as a means of awarding distinction to students having high scholarship and to promote student interest in research and advanced study. These students are provided with the opportunity to have research papers published in the society's journal, Dialogue.

Moderated by Father Mulligan, who is also the National Vice-president, the society meets four times a year. Each meeting features a lecture by a professor from Loyola or another university. These lectures are open to the public. This year's speakers included Fr. Martin D'Arcy of Oxford University, and Rev. Francis J. Powers of Loyola University.

Beta Alpha Psi is the National Honorary Accounting Fraternity. Its members are selected from among the accounting majors on the basis of scholastic achievement both in general business subjects and in accounting. This fraternity provides its members with professional recognition for their achievements.

The Beta Iota Chapter was installed on the Loyola campus on November 10, 1960. Since its installation, it has provided its members with many opportunities to become acquainted with the accounting profession. It also provides service to the University by assisting the accounting department in many of their extra-curricular projects. The Beta Iota Chapter also publishes a journal which presents current accounting problems to the accounting students for their own advancement.

Included in the membership of Beta Alpha Psi are the accounting faculty and Loyola alumni who have received honorary memberships for their professional achievements.

alpha delta gamma

Alpha Delta Gamma is a unique organization in that it is the only one which can lay claim to being a national, Catholic college, social fraternity. Alpha Delts, as they are usually called, pride themselves in being both national and Catholic, and their pride extends to their participation in Loyola activities as well.

Alpha Delta Gamma is the oldest chapter of any national and social fraternity here at Loyola, originating in 1924, and has traditionally emphasized and promoted competition among school organizations, with the hope of producing a school spirit not yet realized.

Alpha Delta Gamma maintains and repeatedly improves a fraternity house, probably the most distinctive building on Kenmore Avenue.

One of the greatest achievements of this fraternity during the past year consisted in sponsoring its 36th annual Thanksgiving Eve Dance. This dance, along with a Chicagoland Catholic College Queen Contest originated by Alpha Delta Gamma two years ago, has proved to be a great social success at Loyola. Chicagoland inter-school relationships have also been strengthened and improved as a result of this Queen Contest.

In the past year, an innovation has come to Loyola in the form of an Interfraternity Greek Week, composed of various types of Greek games such as discus throwing. The winning team, composed of Alpha Delts, is pictured above. One of the now traditional accomplishments of Alpha Delta Gamma has been first place in the Interfraternity Sing Contest, having taken first place four times in the contest's five year existence.

However, apart from all its trophies and winnings, Alpha Delta Gamma takes pride in the main function of its existence, which is the fostering of manly Christian ideals among its members.

alpha kappa psi

Gamma Iota chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi national fraternity in Commerce has enjoyed a most active and successful year. Starting in October with the winning of the Intramural Tennis Championship through the ability of Paul Gauvreau, the fraternity made many significant contributions to the University. Pat Conlon was one of the major contributors to Greek Week as Chairman of the General Smoker. Pat later was to perform a similar task as Chairman of the Fall Frolic. The SAL program saw Jim Talamonti pushing the members to a 100% return. Jim Fitzgerald and Bob Wall, through their efforts on the Commerce Council, also helped toward a better Loyola.

One of the major highlights of the first semester was the induction dinner at which Dr. Raymond Mayer was installed as a faculty member of Alpha Kappa Psi. Jim Sandner received the "Man of the Year" award for his services to the organization.

The major social function of the fraternity is the New Year's Eve party which this year was, according to the members, the best in recent years. With the coming of exams, things quieted down somewhat, but upon completion, a skating party was held at Bass Lake, Indiana.

Elections were held in January, and the new officers installed were: Bob Wall, President; John Grimes, Vice-president; Ron Rosseate, Secretary; John Johlic, Treasurer; Mike Donahoe, Assistant Treasurer; and Dick Dunne, Pledge-master. These new officers are hopeful of a bigger and better year and many professional and social activities have already been scheduled.

Richard Dunne, Pledgemaster, points out some of the rules and procedures of Alpha Kappa Psi to four of the spring pledges.

In order to unite the students of dentistry and to live up to the standards of their profession, Alpha Omega National Fraternity was founded at the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery in 1908.

"Harmonia, Amor, et Veritas" Harmony, Love, and Truth are the guide posts to Alpha Lambda Chapter of Loyola, which was established in 1932, following in the footsteps of their founding brothers. This motto has inspired the members of Alpha Omega over the years in such a fashion that the membership of this national fraternity has advanced to between four and five thousand. The fraternity also boasts of seventy-five national chapters in various dental schools throughout the country.

This first national Jewish fraternity has provided a tradition of which its members are indeed proud. It attempts to carry on this tradition through adult activities which appeal to the level of the members.

Each year the fraternity fills its calendar with events such as smokers, a Halloween Dance, and an April Dinner Dance. It also sponsors many activities appealing to both the cultural and professional interests of its members, such as informal lecture discussions with members of the faculty, and guest lecturers speaking on topics concerning various fields of dental surgery.

alpha tau delta

Alpha Tau Delta, National Professional Fraternity for Women in Nursing, was founded February 15, 1921 at the University of California, Berkeley. Chapters are found at colleges and universities where there are basic collegiate programs in nursing. Xi Chapter, the largest sorority at Loyola, was formed at Loyola University in 1957.

The purposes of Alpha Tau Delta are to promote higher professional standards in the field of nursing education; to develop the field of nursing through a more thorough preparation of its members; to inaugurate specific projects that enrich the field of professional nursing; and to form a close bond of friendship, fellowship, and mutual understanding among college women in the nursing profession.

Alpha Tau Delta sponsors four professional meetings, participates in the Variety Show, the Float Parade, Interfraternity Sing, Intramural Sports, and in charity projects which include thanksgiving baskets, helping a needy family at Christmas time, and supplying two first communicants with clothes. For the last three years, Alpha Tau Delta has won the Outstanding Award from Student's Associates of Loyola in contacting high school seniors.

This year the members were able to participate in the Silver Anniversary of Loyola University's School of Nursing. Alpha Tau Delta also sponsors a communion breakfast for seniors, a parent-daughter dinner, a Christmas dance, Faculty Tea, Founder's Day Dinner, and a closed retreat. They are also responsible for the orientation of students in new clinical areas.

chi theta upsilon

Chi Theta Upsilon, a local sorority on both campuses, is celebrating its third anniversary this year. Founded to give its members close and lasting friendships, diversified academic, religious, and social activities, and to contribute to Loyola's traditions, the sorority has made many advancements in these areas during the past year.

The year-old Committee for Improvement is responsible for these activities. This committee has sponsored theater parties to see Harry Belafonte and A Raisin in the Sun; lectures including one by Lucille Anichini and Dianne Pallasch speaking about their European tour; a bowling party; a visit to the Art Institute; and other activities to appeal to all types of interests. Most of these activities have been for members only, but some were open to all, and in the future, more activities will be opened.

The sorority participated in the SAL program, Interfraternity Sing, Ugly Man Contest, ISC Greek Week, and other events on campus. As a part of its yearly calendar the sorority had a Christmas party for the orphans at St. Vincent's several off-campus parties, and finally, this spring, a mormal dinner dance to celebrate Founder's Day and the induction of its new members.

The members have also been very active in other organizations, and several have received recognition this year for their efforts. Judy Kohnke, former president of Chi Theta Upsilon, is not only the first woman Co-Editor of the Loyolan, but was also chosen for Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities. Three of the members, Patricia Carney, Ellen Miller, and Patricia Podraza, were this year inducted into Circumference, the Women's Leadership Honor Society.

delta sigma delta

The purposes of Delta Sigma Delta, a national dental fraternity, moderated by Dr. John M. Coady, are to maintain high professional standards and to foster scientific, ethical, and professional progress. Beta Chapter was organized at the Loyola School of Dentistry in 1885. Its house is located at 710 S. Ashland Boulevard.

Delta Sigma Delta can claim the honor of having had members of the fraternity in administrative capacities within the School of Dentistry from its beginning to the present time. It is very proud of this record.

As part of its social programs, the fraternity sponsors an all-school picnic, as well as a Christmas party and a St. Patrick's Day party.

Delta Sigma Delta exists for its members, and its members, realizing this fact, have continually devoted themselves to maintaining the honor of the fraternity.

delta sigma pi

Gamma Pi Chapter of the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi was installed at Loyola in the fall of 1950. It is one of 110 undergraduate chapters which has grown from the fraternity's origin at New York University in 1907. As a professional commerce fraternity, Delta Sigma Pi has as a prominent purpose providing a supplement to a business education through guest speakers and industrial tours. At the same time, it gives its members an active and diversified social calendar.

During this year, Delta Sig became proud owners of a fraternity house one block from Lewis Towers, the first fraternity house in that area. It houses a membership which at mid-year numbered 67 active members, making it the largest undergraduate fraternity.

Delta Sig has held the Blue Key Award as "Social Organization of the Year" during the last two semesters. Its social program includes a Founder's Day Commemoration, an Initiation Dinner-Dance each semester, the annual Bal Rose at which the Rose of Delta Sig is crowned, and numerous other parties throughout the year.

The members of Delta Sigma Pi have also established a bloodbank for the use of whomever they may designate. They also won the L.T. Intramural Banner for the third year in succession. The fraternity points with great pride to the leadership its members have shown in student government, organizations, and publications.

An important objective of the Delta Sigs is the promotion of a fraternal bond which joins its members in the ideals of brotherhood.

delta zeta chi

The sisters of Delta Zeta Chi believe that pledging is not a period of subjection and punishment, but a set duration of time in which the sorority and its prospective members get to know each other better. This concept is carried out as each new pledge class is inducted. To complete their pledge program, the Delta Zetas hold a formal Induction Dinner-Dance each spring.

Delta Zeta Chi was founded to promote a unifying force among the undergraduate women of Loyola University. It is the purpose of this sorority to stimulate an active school spirit by participation in all University functions and activities, as well as to nurture leaders and scholars in all fields of study. This is accomplished by the bond of friendship existing among the sisters by which they strive to become better individuals spiritually, mentally, and socially.

Approved by the University in September, 1959, Delta Zeta Chi is the newest sorority at Loyola. In accordance with their policy of active participation in University activities, Delta Zeta has participated in such functions as the Interfraternity Sing, Ugly Man Contest, SAL program, the ISC Greek Week, and all Pow-Wow festivities. Sorority members are also represented in such organizations as the Coed Club, SAL, the Intersorority Council, Wasmann Biological Society, American Chemical Society, Historical Society, Young Democrats Club, and the Math Club.

Last October, Delta Zeta sponsored an open Halloween dance, "The Bone Orchard Bounce." Other social events include rushing teas for prospective members, as well as various closed parties. Delta Zeta also has its share of beauty as exemplified by the candidacy of one of its members in the Miss Loyola Contest.

The sisters of Delta Zeta Chi display their ingenuity and talent in the IFC Sing by winning first place in the sorority competition with the "Trolley Song" from "Meet Me in Saint Louis."

kappa beta gamma

Epsilon Chapter of Kappa Beta Gamma Sorority, since its establishment at Loyola in 1954, has held as its purposes: to promote a spirit of fellowship and service among the members, to uphold the interests of the University, and to encourage higher scholarship. In pursuance of these goals, Kappa has become a group proud of its accomplishments, traditions, and ideals.

To fill the prescription for a healthy campus life, the members engage in many and varied activities. Highlights of Kappa's social calendar are their two traditional formal dances, the Kappa Knight Contest and Party, teas for prospective members, and closed gatherings. Also included are many summer activities and the bi-annual conventions held in different cities.

Kappa's accomplishments number many. This year Kappa won recognition for its outstanding work in the SAL drive, and an award for its entry in the Loyola Union Pow-Wow Float Parade. Kappans won third prize in last year's Loyola Fair, and two of its members were entered in the Miss Loyola contest. Individuals hold offices in the Coed Club, Intersorority Council, and the Arts Council. The Kappas also took part in the Interfraternity Sing and Variety Show. As their charity project for 1961, the members assisted in a clear-up party at Marillac House.

Housed in the gray-walled building known as the Loyola Law School, there is an assemblage of students dedicated to binding together the various classes of the Law School and linking inseparably alumni and present students. Most important of their goals is the desire to create and maintain a feeling of pride and devotion to law, the profession, and the school. This association is the Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity. Their aim is to the future, and so the accomplishments of their goals are measurable only by reference to the successful growth of the individual members of the fraternity, and, in turn, the growth of the school.

Phi Alpha Delta measures amongst its accomplishments, individuals who attained greatness in the service of country and profession such as: former President Harry S. Truman; former Vice-president Richard Nixon; Senator John Sparkman; former President Woodrow Wilson; and Supreme Court Justices William O. Douglas, Thomas C. Clark, and Charles E. Wittaker.

At Loyola, Phi Alpha Delta is headed by Justice Bruce E. Golden, Vice-justice Thomas P. Hickey, Jr., Clerk Gerald L. Dorf, Treasurer Edward P. Keavy, and Marshal Walter J. Smoluch. The success of the present members and of the Law School will be the means by which to measure the fraternity's current accomplishments.

The conception of PAD was the result of the Illinois Supreme Court case of In Re Day, 181 Ill. 73, wherein the admission requirements for the bar of the day were challenged. This controversy nurtured the formation of the "Law Students' League," which gave rise, at Loyola and three other schools, to the embryo of the largest legal fraternity in the world. There are 83 active and 45 alumni chapters, including Loyola's Daniel Webster Chapter, which has 30 active members.

phi beta pi

Phi Beta Pi dates back to 1891 when its Alpha Chapter was organized at the University of Pittsburgh Medical School. Alpha Omega Chapter was brought to Loyola's Stritch School of Medicine in 1921. At present, the fraternity has thirty-two chapters in medical schools throughout the United States.

The history of the Alpha Omega chapter is as illustrious as that of the national fraternity itself. Particularly noteworthy is the fact that Dr. L. D. Moorhead, one of the chapter's founders and former Dean of Loyola's Medical School, achieved greatness in the medical profession. Today this medical genius is commemorated in the annual Moorhead lectureship of Phi Beta Pi.

Alpha Omega maintains a chapter house for its members near the Medical School. Here, the burdens of medical school life are alleviated by the congenial fellowship which exists within the ranks of the fraternity. It is also here that the members gather at the various professional and social events sponsored by the fraternity for a few moments of well-earned relaxation.

phi chi

Phi Sigma Chapter of Phi Chi National Medical fraternity dates from 1907, when it was founded as a local medical fraternity. Shortly after its inception, the members of this active group expressed a desire to affiliate themselves with the national organization of Phi Chi. The Chapter was installed at the twelfth national convention of Phi Chi held the following year in Baltimore.

At present, most of the members of the fraternity are housed in quarters at 712 S. Ashland Boulevard. These quarters are composed of three houses, two of which have been consolidated into one fraternity unit where the bulk of its activities are centered.

In spite of the large size of the organization, the members of Phi Chi show an unusual closeness. This spirit is motivated by the friendship naturally acquired under the fraternity system, as well as the constant sharing of personal interests in the medical profession.

John Fennell, Fred Udekwa, William Gatti, Leonard Kut, and Raym Hurm are served in the Phi Chi House by Victor Joe.

pi alpha lambda

Pi Alpha Lambda, one of the oldest social fraternities at Loyola, has been for thirty-six years an integral part of the University.

The members of Pi Alpha Lambda continue the fraternity tradition of entering into University activities with enthusiasm, competing vigorously in interfraternity competitions, both athletic and social, and by excelling in their many endeavors. Such activities as the sponsorship of the seventh annual Intercollegiate Dance, the crowning of the Pi Alpha candidate as "Miss Loyola" for the sixth time, the intramural football championship, and the annual Summer Formal have afforded just pride to the members of the fraternity.

Pi Alpha Lambda is not overly interested in stressing the social side of college life. Since its founding, the fraternity has increased its scope of activities to the point where every organization at Loyola—athletic teams, honorary societies, student government, chairmanships and committees—will usually contain the names of two or three Pi Alphas who are distinctly prominent in the activities of those organizations.

Examples of fraternity activity in these fields include the President of the Senior Class, and, for the fourth consecutive year, Treasurer of the Arts Council. Fraternity members are actively engaged in Loyola's major athletic attractions, the basketball, track, and swimming teams. Such honorary societies as the Blue Key Fraternity et al, include within their organization members of this fraternity. This brief enumeration is only one indication of the varied interests, activities, and participation of the membership of Pi Alpha Lambda.

psi omega

Psi Omega is the Loyola School of Dentistry's largest fraternity. The fraternity has as its objectives to cultivate the social qualities of its members; to assist its members in all their laudable undertakings; to exert its influence for the advancement of the dental profession; and lastly, to surround each member with friends to whom he may turn for advice and assistance.

The fraternity has become an integral part of the School of Dentistry. Academically, its members have shown their excellence by maintaining a consistently high level of scholastic achievement. In addition to cultivating the professional aspirations of its members, Psi Omega maintains a program of social events which begin with those functions at which the fraternity welcomes incoming freshmen to the School of Dentistry. The Freshmen Open House, Freshmen Smoker, and Freshmen Pledge Banquet are the leading events on the social calendar of the fraternity.

Psi Omega is proud of its past record; its members look confidently to the future.

sigma delta phi

Sigma Delta Phi is Loyola's youngest fraternity. It is also one of the University's most vigorous groups, as proven by its winning of third place in the Greek Week field games.

The fraternity's social calendar includes its Kampus Kaucus Mixer held in conjunction with Loyola's mock election. During the past year they have sponsored open-guest parties and closed parties. Sigma Delta Phi's annual father-son Communion breakfast is held every May.

Because the Sigma Delts believe that service to the University is important, they can claim participation as ushers for the Curtain Guild, ushers for the Leo XIII Symposium, and originators of Greek Week at Loyola. Sports are an integral part of any fraternity, and Sigma Delta Phi fielded teams in the Intermural League and Fraternity League.

One factor that is important to any fraternity is the number of people it has active in school organizations and activities. During the past year, Sigma Delta Phi has had members of the fraternity elected to both the Commerce Council and Arts Council, and to the chairmanship of the Interfraternity Council. Its members were also active in numerous social and academic clubs at Loyola. The President of Beta Alpha Psi, Vice-President of S.A.M., News Editor of the Loyola News, and Managing Editor of the Loyolan are all examples of positions their members hold in these organizations on campus.

It is the belief of the fraternity that this past year has aptly exemplified the fraternity's purpose and goals. These are: to unite a body of men into a living creed upon whose continuous achievements rest the foundation of the future; to benefit its brothers academically, morally, and physically, as well as socially; to be led by principle rather than by special interest; and to promote brotherly love and advancements among its brothers.

sigma lambda beta

Sigma Lambda Beta Fraternity is a business fraternity operating in the University College. Throughout the year, the fraternity tries to further the interests of Loyola among the night school students. Individual members of Sigma Lambda Beta serve on the University College Student Council and are constantly initiating new projects for student benefit.

The fraternity traditionally has been the right arm of student government in the University College. In this capacity, it works hand in hand with the U.C. Student Council in promotion of such activities as the Dean's Coffee Hour and the Graduate's Honor Banquet.

This year the fraternity has taken an active part in the initial formation of two new organizations in night school, the University College Club and the Society for the Advancement of Management.

Within its own organization, Sigma Lambda Beta annually holds an initiation dinner which is an appreciation function for both newcomers and graduates.

The officers of Sigma Lambda Beta are: President, Peter Quinn; Vice-president, John Erickson; Secretary, Earl Olsen; Treasurer, Norm Lellenberg; and Pledgemasters, Gerald Albrecht and Joseph Jindrich.

sigma pi

After long standing as Loyola's oldest fraternity, Phi Mu Chi this year became Loyola's newest fraternity. It has achieved this paradox by leaving the local status of Phi Mu Chi and joining the national ranks of Sigma Pi. By becoming Beta Chi chapter of Sigma Pi fraternity, the chapter was enabled to strengthen its internal organization, while gaining the prestige enjoyed by a fine national fraternity. The nationalization of Phi Mu Chi, then, has become a definite advantage to its members, to its alumni, and to its prospective members. But outside of its own ranks, Sigma Pi also brings a stronger look to the fraternity system at Loyola, thus benefitting the entire school.

The step forward taken by the fraternity during the past year should not, however, be regarded as an end in itself; for, by becoming Sigma Pi, the fraternity has provided itself with an excellent means of being able to provide more for its members in the way of social activities, organization, and perhaps, housing.

By believing that a fraternity is a strong dynamic organization on the campus of a university, while representing an important aspect of student life, the entire membership of Sigma Pi has been able to achieve outstanding accomplishments in areas such as extra-curricular activities, academic pursuits, and social activities.

The chapter looks back over the past year as a milestone in its history. Although it was difficult to leave the long-established traditions and memories of Phi Mu Chi behind, it can now look optimistically forward to new aims and goals in the coming years as Sigma Pi.

The spring 1960, pledge class of Sigma Pi Alpha was the first to join the newly reorganized and rejuvenated fraternity. After a short period of inactivity, Sigma Pi Alpha reentered the ranks of Loyola fraternities and within a few months in the fall of 1960 went on to win first place in the TEKE-sponsored Ugly Man Contest.

Founded in 1932, Sigma Pi Alpha has had a distinguished record of service to Loyola, and it includes among its first members many noted professional men, a number of whom now serve the city of Chicago.

During last year's reorganization, the Alumni Association was formed. All past members were encouraged to join, and now, a year later, 110 brothers are actively participating in the Association. This number makes it the largest Alumni fraternity organization in the University.

The fraternity feels that it has to offer prospective pledges both the vigor of a young organization and the solid foundation of more than twenty-eight years participation in the life of Loyola University.

tau delta phi

During the past year at Loyola, Tau Eta Chapter of Tau Delta Phi has again been able to achieve its purpose of aiding the University and the students.

On the social scene, the Tau Delts sponsored their regular "Drop-Ins" at the fraternity house and presented, for the first time, a lecture series. The inauguration of the Tau Delts' lecture series was prompted by the Chapter's realization of the advantages of a teacher-student relationship springing from informal discussions at the fraternity house. As an aid to the Greek system at Loyola, the Tau Delts also sponsored an Interfraternity Stag Night to create a firm bond among the fraternities on campus who possess a house.

The Tau Delts this year participated in all University-sponsored activities open to them. In athletics, the Tau Delts won second place in the Greek Week festivities. Vice-President Larry Gerber was the General Chairman of the Student Associates of Loyola, and in its program the Tau Delts, represented by their Treasurer Bill Gardiner, were presented the Outstanding Participation Award. As to scholarship, the Tau Delts placed second among the Greeks on campus.

The Tau Delts have shown excellent group action, but they also possess individual leaders such as Jim Harris, President of the Junior Class of the College of Arts and Sciences; Bill Sieger, President of the Historical Society; Larry Gerber, Junior Class officer in Commerce; and President Mike Morawey, past President of the Interfraternity Council. Morawey, Harris, and Gerber were also honored by their acceptance into Blue Key National Honor Fraternity.

The Tau Delts have evidenced the results of a unified fraternal group and will continue to do so in the future.

The Epsilon Kappa Chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity was originally founded as the University Club in 1938. The Club joined the ranks of the National Fraternity in 1956 and has, in the past five years, risen to top position among the fraternities on campus as recognized by the National College Survey Bureau.

The Tekes sponsor many activities throughout the year. Among these are the Halloween Ugly Man mixer, with its Ugly Man contest for the benefit of the Patna Missions; the St. Patrick's Day Dance in conjunction with the Teke Sweetheart contest; the Coed Tea; and various faculty lectures held at the fraternity house.

Among its awards this year, the Tekes won first place trophies for best fraternity float and best float in general competition in the Pow-Wow Float Parade contest. The fraternity has won these awards for the past two years.

The Tekes hold a prominent position among the organizations of the University. For the year 1959-1960, the fraternity received the title of "Best Organization of the Year," as presented by the Blue Key Honorary Fraternity. The Epsilon Kappa Chapter also received recognition from the National Interfraternity Council for top academic achievement among the national fraternities on campus.

All activities of the fraternity are oriented towards developing in its members a spirit consistent with its motto: "Not for wealth, rank, or honor, but for personal worth and character."

theta phi alpha

With the establishment of Upsilon chapter of Theta Phi Alpha in 1943, Loyola University witnessed the beginning of sorority life. From this start, the strength of women's fraternities on campus has grown consistently. Theta Phi Alpha can today lay claim to being the oldest and only Pan-Hellenic sorority at Loyola. It has as its ideals: scholarship, leadership, and most important, friendship. The chapter's chaplain is the Rev. Leo Martin, S.J., and their moderator is Miss Mary Louise McPartlin.

The members of Theta Phi Alpha strive to enjoy both the fun and responsibilities of college life. This year's activities began with an example of this. In September, just before the fall term, Theta Phi held a Sorority Weekend in Wisconsin. Rushing was held in October, which kept the Theta Phis busy right up to their participation in the Ugly Man Contest. In November, they got in tune for the Interfraternity Sing, while the more creative members were already designing the second place winner in the Float Parade for December's Pow-Wow celebration. December also witnessed Theta Phi's philanthropy project of a Christmas card sale for Glenmary Missions. Along with these school activities, Theta Phi Alpha also includes close dinners and parties. In addition, during the semester break, an open party was held jointly with the Theta Phis from DePaul.

The second semester began, and with it came the added attraction of the Variety Show. With the incentive of two consecutive wins behind them, Theta Phi Alpha again took this year's best organization award, with the added "Iggy" from the Alumni Association.

The remaining months in spring were kept for private parties and activities. In May, the spring pledge were formally initiated and the year was climaxed with the annual White Rose Ball.

xi psi phi

Lambda chapter of Xi Psi Phi national professional dental fraternity was established at the Loyola School of Dentistry in 1896. The Lambda chapter is under the very able moderatorship of Dr. John R. Allison.

Among its purposes is the promotion of intellectual and educational advancement; whereas the objectives of the fraternity are both professional and social development along with greater school unity.

The fraternity's functions are many. Among these are house parties, lectures, the annual formal dance, and the yearly golf outing, which is open to the entire faculty and student body.

The fraternity also has an auxiliary division, the "Zippettes," composed of the wives and fiancées of its members. They serve the fraternity by arranging refreshments and decorations for social activities, and providing clerical work for reviews. The alumni division provides encouragement and ideas for improvement of the members, the fraternity, and the school.

Founded at Loyola in 1949, the Accounting Club strives to bridge the gap between accounting theory and its practical application. This aim is accomplished through speakers; representatives of public accounting firms, industry, and banking; field trips; and the distribution of literature, encompassing many and varied aspects of the accounting field.

As an affiliate of the Illinois Conference of Accountancy Clubs, the organization actively participates in presenting an Opportunity Conclave, an entire day devoted to acquainting the students with the opportunities available for employment, training, and advancement in the business world.

Through the activities of this organization, those students having interests in accounting and all of its phases are given the opportunity to take active participation in the various programs which it sponsors. This practical application of theories is an invaluable complement to their learning. The members are given the opportunity to discuss the programs and ideas of accountants employed in many of the outstanding Chicago area business firms.

The student affiliate branch of the American Chemical Society replaced the former Chemistry Club at Loyola in May of 1950. The Society is open to students enrolled in the chemistry curriculum and other individuals who are interested in expanding their understanding of science beyond the classroom lecture. The primary purpose of the Society entails the developing of a professional attitude among its members toward the field of chemistry.

The organization holds its meetings twice a month. The regular meetings are composed of motion pictures pertaining to research and experiments recently conducted in this science. Also, guest speakers from other universities and demonstrations supplement and broaden the prospective chemist's knowledge.

Besides its regular meetings, the organization sponsored many social events. This year's social calendar was highlighted by the Christmas party for the membership.

"The Loyola Chemisphere" is the monthly publication produced by the Society which further supplements and fulfills the purposes of the organization.

In September, 1957, in response to a long-felt need for an organization to function as an auxiliary to the R.O.T.C., Lt. Col. James L. McCrorey founded the Loyola chapter of the United States Army. It is both a professional and social organization composed of civilian and army personnel as well as college R.O.T.C. units

As a national organization, the A.U.S.A. works to promote the role of the army in National Defense. Its goals are to promote professional excellence in the cadets of the Corps and to provide a social atmosphere in which the cadets may associate with professional military men and with their fellow students. The Association brings to Loyola prominent military men to address the Cadet Corps, which, as a result, gains a close contact with army personnel and army life in general.

To accomplish its goals, the Association employs a multiphase attack. At the national level, the Association carries on a broad program of educating the public of the importance of a strong military establishment.

The A.U.S.A. hosts a variety of events from military discussions to the annual Military Ball.

bellarmine philosophy club

An opportunity to meet and to discuss philosophical problems was given Loyola students in the establishment of the Bellarmine Philosophy Club. It was begun on the Lake Shore campus in 1930, and is now organized into two divisions, the Lake Shore division and the Lewis Towers division.

The purpose of the Philosophy Club is to give students an opportunity to become acquainted with the various systems of philosophy, and, in addition, to lead them toward a better knowledge and appreciation of Scholastic philosophy. To fulfill this purpose, then, the club is open to any student who is seriously interested in philosophy and who has a desire to discuss current philosophic problems.

This year the club has sponsored a series of discussions integrating psychology with the philosophical sciences to coordinate their interests. The value of this endeavor has been advantageously realized by the participant members in the program.

Recognizing the need for a University Glee Club and the active response of Loyola's student body for such an organization, plans which began in May, 1960 actualized in the formation of the Loyola University Glee Club in September, 1960.

Under the capable direction of Robert Sutter, and J. David Smith, the moderator, the Glee Club has proven its talent before the student body and faculty on many occasions. Its membership, totalling about forty students is representative of both the Lewis Towers and Lake Shore campuses.

The Glee Club made its successful debut at the Founders Day activities, and since that time has performed at many University functions, including the Christmas Crib Ceremony, the PAL Dinner, the Palm Sunday Lenten Concert, the Fine Arts Concert, and a concert held before the Bronson Circle Club.

Last year, however, the club was inactive; but this year under the direction of president James Kelly and fellow officers James Mini and Bernard Blau the club got off to a fine start by having its first dance in about six years.

The Monogram Club which is composed of varsity letter winners in Loyola's three major sports of basketball, swimming, and track, has a currently active undergraduate membership of seventeen.

The purpose of the organization is to promote athletics on the intercollegiate level and to exert its best efforts toward placing Loyola on top in the field of sportsmanship. The club welcomes visiting teams and helps them in any way to make theirs an enjoyable and memorable stay at Loyola's campus.

The Loyola Coed Club is celebrating its twelfth anniversary this year. Organized in the spring of 1949, this club has one of the largest and most active memberships at Loyola. Its membership is open to all women students in the undergraduate day division who wish to participate in the organization's extensive program of diversified social activities.

The uppermost objective of this organization is to unite Loyola's women students in their social, academic, and religious life. Functioning on both campuses, Lake Shore and Lewis Towers, the Coed Club sponsors numerous activities throughout the year designed to promote lasting friendships among its members and to provide them with activities which will make their college life an active one.

Through its "Big Sister" program, each semester the incoming freshmen and transfer students are given the opportunity to become acquainted with the organization and the women students of the University. In this way, these coeds are assisted in orientating themselves to Loyola student life.

The Coed Club's present membership stands at 325 undergraduate women students. The moderator of this extensive organization is Miss Joan Vaccaro, who was also one of the founders of the Club.

The program of activities presented for its members starts at the beginning of each semester with the Welcome Tea for new women students. It is at this tea that the "Big Sister" program begins.

The annual Christmas formal, held in 1960 at the Bismarck Hotel, highlighted the Christmas vacation. Other activities include the fashion show, the card party, the Spring Dance, which is usually held at the Columbia Yacht Club, the Senior Farewell Dinner, and the Ski-Weekend which is sponsored jointly by the Loyola Union and the Coed Club.

In the past the two divisions of the Club were operated under one head by the Coed Club Joint Board which consisted of the officers from both of the campuses. But because of the particular needs of each campus, the two segments of the club now act as distinct entities with a joint treasury.

The Loyola Curtain Guild was established in 1936 to foster the interest of University students in drama and to afford opportunities for its members to develop their talents in the theatre arts.

Highlighting the Guild's twenty-fifth season were three major productions. During the first semester, the Guild presented a musical, "Annie Get Your Gun." The leading roles of Annie Oakley and Frank Butler were played by Belinda Westbrook and Harry James. With few minor exceptions, the actors were making their first Guild appearances. This, however, was not detectable from the fine performance they gave. "Annie," which was directed by Mr. Morris of the Speech department, was hailed as one of the finest productions in the history of the Curtain Guild.

Shortly after the second semester began, the Guild presented Moliere's, "The Miser," starring Ronald Cincinelli. The play was directed by Mr. Dickinson, moderator of the Curtain Guild. In April the final play of the season, "Othello," was produced. This play, a Shakespereain tragedy, was directed by Mr. Morris.

In addition to the Guild's major productions, the students of the organization have the opportunity to produce a series of workshops held on Sunday afternoon. These are held in the assembly hall at the Lake Shore campus in months where there are no regular productions scheduled.

The officers of the Guild are John Marquette, president; James Chambers, vice-president; and Jerry O'Connor, secretary. Membership in the Curtain Guild is open to any Loyola student interested in the dramatic arts.

The Loyola University Debating Society, the oldest extracurricular organization on campus, has enjoyed another successful year. Its members traveled from Harvard University in Cambridge, Massachusetts, to Springhill College in Mobile, Alabama in order to meet, and in many instances, defeat, the top debate squads in the nation. Other tournaments included those at Bradley University, Miami University of Ohio, Illinois State Normal University, Purdue University, Marquette University, Augustana College, Notre Dame University, Xavier University, and Northwestern University.

These events have offered members of the Society the opportunity to express themselves on a question of national interest, "Resolved: The United States should adopt a program of compulsory health insurance for all citizens." These tournaments also encourage the exchange of ideas on various subjects among college students from all sections of the United States.

Besides actual debating, the Society sponsored the Annual Jesuit Collegiate Debate Tournament at Loyola University. The members also supported such activities as the Miss Loyola Contest, the Ugly Man Contest, the Variety Show, and the Union Pow Wow.

The Economics-Finance Society, a member chapter of the American Finance Association, is designed to supplement its members' education in finance and economics with an interesting and informative program of speakers and professional tours.

Membership in the society is open to all students who are in good standing with the University and have been in attendance at least one semester at Loyola. The Society is moderated by Dr. Sylvester Frizol.

Prior to the beginning of a semester, the Society's program committee formulates a professional program. A typical semester's program includes speakers, tours, forums, and movies on both current and related topics of interest.

The programs presented for the benefit of the Society's members this year included speakers from the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics and a seminar which enabled both faculty members and students to participate in a discussion of ideas pertinent to contemporary finance and economics.

education society

The primary objective of the Loyola Education Society, founded in 1955, is to unite students and alumni of the University in a directed effort at the study of contemporary difficulties, shortcomings, and achievements of the field of education. The Society acts as an extension of the classroom's area of discussion, and also serves to promote and foster a greater harmony between students, alumni, and education department faculty.

Meeting twice each semester under the direction of Dr. J. J. Valenti, moderator, the Society's spring program was augmented by addresses delivered by Dr. James Smith, Associate Superintendent of Chicago Public Schools, and also an alumnus of the department; and by Dr. George N. Shuster, noted Catholic layman, President Emeritus of Hunter College, and former diplomat.

The general pattern for the Society's meetings include lectures such as those mentioned above, debates on controversial educational topics, or open discussion of a pertinent question, followed by a social. With an expansive viewpoint provided by such a program, the Education Society strives to increase an awareness of the problems modern education most often encounters. With such an organization to act as a sounding board for potential theory and future practices, the benefits which accrue to the members of the Society through its activities are wide. Under the watchful eye and careful guidance of the department, those students comprising its membership are correctly directed to their future vocation.

The Education Society, as both a social and a scholastic organization, is particularly of interest to those who have aspirations to teach. Membership is also open to those graduate students in the Department of Education; and is further extended to encompass all graduate and undergraduate students, as well as alumni of the Department of Education.

Epsilon Pi Rho Officers. Dr. D. Herbert Abel, moderator; Lawrence Brooks, Daniel Ryan, Loretta Picucci, Anthony Florek.

epsilon pi rho

Epsilon Pi Rho, the Loyola University Latin Club, follows the tradition of a true Jesuit education. The scholars of Western Christendom have long realized the benefits which can flow freely from learning based on the classic heights reached by the founders of our civilization.

With this in mind, Epsilon Pi Rho was established to help its members explore the impact of the civilizations of Aristotelian Greece and Virgilian Rome upon our own culture, and in so doing to better appreciate the achievements of both the modern and ancient worlds.

Of prime concern is the developing in its members an awareness that the antecedents of a civilization are no less important than the civilization itself; that things are inevitably more meaningful when considered in terms of that from which they came than when examined solely in themselves.

In order to be eligible for membership, a student must be taking or have successfully completed one college course in Latin.

Under the able leadership and guidance of Dr. D. Herbert Abel, the moderator of Epsilon Pi Rho, it has blossomed into one of the larger and more prominent academic organizations on the University's campus.

As a means of fulfilling its aims, the Club sponsors a series of lectures and slide programs on classical culture. The last event of the year, their annual banquet, was held at the Kungsholm Restaurant.

Lawrence Patterson accepts a first place award in the Nu-Fashion Horse Show from the Rev. Hugh B. Rodman, S.J.

The recently re-organized Equestrian Society has taken great strides to become integrated in the Loyola social curriculum. The original club became inactive due to a lack of membership, but re-birth has to its advantage an enthusiastic group of about thirty riders.

Under the moderation of Father Hugh Rodman, S.J., and the teaching skill and leadership of Bill Bulle of Nu-Fashion Stables, the club has fulfilled two necessary roles: it is not only an extra-curricular activity, but also fulfills the requirements for physical education credits of would-be teachers.

The students from L.T. and L.S.C. attend classes during the week and receive instructions from Mr. Budde, an acclaimed horseman and trainer. At this year's annual horse show, one of the events was a competition among the beginner's class of Loyola University.

Due to the enthusiasm of the student riders, the determination of their teacher, and the encouragement of their moderator, the club has ambitions of becoming one of our most active organizations.

fine arts club

Since its inception here at Loyola University in January of 1954, the Fine Arts Club has made a considerable and lasting contribution to the cultural growth of its many avid members and of the student body in general.

The purpose of the Fine Arts Club is to foster and develop in each of its members a deep appreciation of the beauty and utility offered by the fine arts through group attendance at the theatre, symphony, opera, ballet, art exhibits, and other displays of fine art.

By affording the students of the University an opportunity to witness and partake of the many and diversified cultural activities presented in the Chicago area, the organization has produced many rewarding accomplishments; not the least of which is its annual increase in membership, which includes at the present students in all the undergraduate colleges and many at the graduate level.

These past two semesters, the Club undertook a vigorous program of activities designed to view the variety of cultural life in the vicinity. Under the direction of Dr. Paul Hummert, moderator, the season began by attendance at a performance of Marcel Marceau, and culminated with the seeing of "A Raisin in the Sun." Interspersed between these two memorable productions were journeys to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and Harry Belafonte's Civic Opera House program.

The club reports that this year they have had no difficulty selling tickets to the various productions at which they sponsor group attendance, and that for "La Boheme" the demand exceeded the supply. That appreciation of culture is certainly not dormant on Loyola's campus is evidenced by these facts.

In the future, plans are being laid to renew a former custom of inviting a guest lecturer after seeing a show to discuss the merits of the offering.

foreign students association

Because of the ever increasing enrollment of foreign students at the University, the Foreign Students Association is becoming more valuable in its purpose. It was formed to serve as a medium of association for the foreign students themselves and also to acquaint these students with American students. Only in these social and educational contacts through the Association can fellowship and understanding be prompted.

In return, the benefit of foreign students to Loyola is immeasurable. They contribute more to world understanding by their personalities and attitudes than is realized. That they have organized among themselves their own club is a direct example of their initiative and educational endeavor. They realize that only through such an organization can human contacts be promoted and valuable understanding be experienced. The association's strength, of course, is in its enrollment, and each year the number of foreign students at Loyola University increases so that they now number over one hundred.

Of course, the association also realizes the needs of the members within itself. The members provide for themselves an atmosphere of home enjoyment while in Chicago so that they can appreciate each other's culture and also understand the American way of life. The Foreign Students Association is more than a club made up of foreign students of Loyola; it is an attempt to promote meaning and understanding among the cultures of the world.

The association provides this social contact through its activities. Among them are lectures, discussions, and other social events. They have held annually a panel discussion with members of the Chicago Junior Chamber of Commerce. Also each year, the group produces its Spring Festival, at which the members entertain with national songs and dances.

The purpose of the Gerard Manley Hopkins Society is to vitalize literary studies outside the classroom. The Society, acting as a supplement to the students' regular English courses, is made up of English majors at the University and also those students interested in our literary heritage.

The club was founded here at Loyola in 1931 and received its name from the Jesuit who was then becoming known as one of our greatest modern poets.

Noted speakers, drawn mainly from the English department, have been called upon to acquaint the students with the great people in the literary world. This year's speakers included Dr. Gerrietts, who spoke on Henry James; Dr. Wolff, who discussed the works of Leonard Wolfe; Dr. Hummert, who analyzed Ibsen; and Dr. Gorman, criticizing Dos Passos.

The primary purpose of the Society is the attainment of greater appreciation and understanding for English majors of noted works of literary merit.

historical society

The Loyola Historical Society is completing its twelfth year as the University's largest student academic organization. During these years, it has also been one of the most active. Its annual membership averages approximately 400, and the members are drawn from all the undergraduate schools and colleges of the University.

The Society's foremost function is the sponsoring of monthly lectures throughout the school year by local, national, and international authorities in the fields of political science and history.

During the fall semester, it sponsored a technicolor motion picture and lecture on Africa given by the Rev. R. F. McCoy, a member of the White Fathers missionaries, who had just returned from the Congo. The following month the Rev. R. V. Schoder, S.J., who had just published his well-received volume, Masterpieces of Greek Art, gave a colored slide lecture on the same subject. For its December program, the Society gave its support to the Blessing of the Crib ceremony held at Madonna Della Strada Chapel on December 19, 1960. Subsequent lectures were of like nature.

Some of the most outstanding speakers of the past have been the Rev. John Fitzgerald, Civil War specialist; the Rev. Gordon Albion, prominent English Catholic clergyman; Dr. Herbert Kuhle, German Consul-General; Sen. Paul H. Douglas; Sen. Everett M. Dirksen; Mayor Richard J. Daley; Dr. K. C. Wu, former governor of Formosa; the Rev. Francis X. Grollig, S.J., anthropologist; and the Hon. Robert W. Mason, British Consul-General.

The Historical Society sponsors annually an essay contest open to all students of history in the University and awarding fifty dollars in prizes.

Society projects are financed entirely by student membership fees. This fee is one dollar for the entire year. No other subsidies are accepted.

Members of Loyola Men discuss the retreat schedule with their moderator, Rev. John C. Hayes, S.J., prior to their departures.

Loyola Men is an organization built on the conviction that the Catholic way of life is a full-time vocation. Yet by a method of degrees of membership, Loyola Men respects the individual needs, aspirations, and graces of particular persons. Under the direction of the Rev. J. D. Hayes, S.J., Loyola Men coordinates and integrates the programs of the Apostleship of Prayer and the Men's Sodality of Our Lady into a spiritual program which can appeal to the modern collegian.

While still in the beginning stage, Loyola Men has already begun to make its influence felt around the campus. The members are urged to work through their various other organizations rather than directly as a group apart from the general student body.

During the semester vacation, the organization sponsored a seven-day retreat for over forty students and plans to run a second retreat for another forty men at the end of the current school year.

loyola men

Loyola Men relax in Loyola Hall as they await the start of their first annual retreat.

Under the direction of the Rev. Thomas Murray, S.J. and the Rev. John J. Beckman, S.J., Loyola Women strive to live up to the high ideals of their Catholic vocation through a variety of activities.

Loyola Women held a Communion breakfast for the new freshman women early in the Freshman Week activities, and joined with several other Chicago colleges to sponsor a joint study day on the work of the lay missionaries. A five-day retreat was held for members during the between-semester vacation. They also joined with the Loyola Men and the women from Mundelein College in holding another study day with Xavier University. This was held February 18 on the topic, The Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatius, the famed Jesuit retreat begun by the founder of the order of St. Ignatius Loyola.

Loyola Women, too, follow a policy of quiet influence on the Catholic life of the students at Loyola by working through many other organizations.

Officers of Loyola Women are seen with Rev. John J. Beckman, S.J., director of Loyola Hall, planning for the coming year.

An opportunity for all students of Loyola to become acquainted with both positive and negative factors of present-day society was realized in the organization of the Human Relations Club. Its only requirement for membership is that the student have a realistically mature eagerness to know and understand the people and reasons behind present world affairs.

Under the direction of Dr. Francis Cizon, the present moderator, the Club has been organized into various fields of social relations: racial relations, social psychology, criminology, urban development, labor and industrial relations, and foreign affairs. It is within the aim of their activities to have programs concerning each of these fields and thereby focus the place of sociology in community life.

The Human Relations Club meets every two weeks and here through general discussion the members bring more meaning to present-day social problems. Also at this time, speakers are invited to lecture and lead discussion on current topics of interest.

Besides sponsoring lectures, the HRC organizes frequent field trips including visits to the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, the Joliet State Penitentiary, and the DePaul Settlement House.

Innovations and progress marked the 1960-61 year for the Loyola University Marketing Club. In April of this year, a two-day Career Conference was held in the Palmer House in which five hundred students, college seniors and graduates, participated in a series of luncheons, speeches, and interviews with leading business firms in the Chicago area. The purpose of the conference was to acquaint these students with opportunities available to them through their marketing training.

In addition, publication of the Loyola Marketing News was begun to coordinate the activities of the club with other students of marketing. The paper acted as a source of information to those interested in contemporary marketing procedure.

While the expressed objective of the Marketing Club is to broaden student interest in the field of merchandising, this year's program served to make it an integral part of the College of Commerce.

The Mathematics Club of Loyola University is an organization designed to stimulate interest in mathematics and its practical applications. The purpose of this club is to diffuse information concerning mathematics, and to establish a cultural and social outlet for its members. The organization achieves this purpose by sponsoring lectures, given by students as well as professional men, and by periodic field trips to various government and industrial scientific projects. Membership is open to students who have completed or are in the process of completing the second course in calculus.

Due to the increasing demand that mathematics and science students be able to efficiently operate a slide rule, the club presented a series of lectures pertaining to the principles and operation of this instrument.

An outstanding feature of the Mathematics Club was its student tutorial service available to individuals seeking instruction or advice in mathematics. This service enabled upper division mathematics students to familiarize themselves with student teaching, and to acquaint the underclassmen with the organization and its beneficial activities.

The Modern Language Club, which was organized at Loyola in 1956, was founded as a social as well as an academic organization. Its purpose is to promote interest in and instill a knowledge and appreciation of the various cultures of the languages taught at the University. In order to achieve this goal, the club has organized weekly meetings where students of the various languages congregate and converse in that particular language. The conversation groups are usually under the direction of one of those whose native tongue is in use.

In further pursuit of its goal, the club meets each month, at which meetings travelogues, slides, or a lecture is presented. Recorded concerts are brought to these meetings, and faculty members from the language department attend to describe the settings in which these recordings are presented.

Social and cultural aspects are combined at least three times each year when the members gather at one of Chicagoland's famous foreign restaurants.

The Physics Club at Loyola University provides an opportunity for students interested in the physical sciences and their applications. The club was established in 1953 by a group of undergraduate physics majors.

The club has sponsored a series of field trips to various laboratories such as the Armour Research Company. Through these activities, much extra-curricular interest in physics is stimulated.

Under the direction of Father Roll, the club this year established a weekly tutorial service for freshmen at Loyola who have long been in need of such a service.

Also during this past year, the club has affiliated itself with the American Institute of Physics, which has provided more speakers and broader activities for the members of the club, thereby creating, fostering, and increasing an active interest in the field of physics as the dynamic science it is today.

The Psychological Research Society provides a very broad background in the field of psychology, not only for those undergraduate students who are majoring in psychology, but also for any student interested in this field.

The Society was founded by a group of psychology majors who brought it into active participation in campus activities.

The Society has shown films and invited speakers to address the membership as one of the many innovations designed to make meetings as interesting as possible.

These meetings provide the student with information in psychology which will act as a supplement to the psychology courses offered at the University. Membership also offers the student much in the way of reviewing for his comprehensive examination.

With these programs better than 100 students, both graduate and undergraduate, interested in education and particularly psychology, have, with the help of Dr. Robert C. Nicolay, made the organization one of the leading groups at Loyola University.

Under the watchful guidance of Dr. Peter T. Swanish, S.A.M. has pursued its ultimate goal of developing human resources.

The chapter at Loyola has progressed to a position of eminence among similar clubs throughout North America by consistently winning first place in national, local, and university contests. Among its many awards were the Remington Rand National Performance Award won in competition with 178 other S.A.M. chapters; receiving the Chicago Area Award traveling trophy for the third year in succession, thereby becoming permanent possessor; and being presented with the coveted Blue Key Honor Fraternity Award for best academic organization on Loyola's campus.

The club's activities include field trips to several industrial plants in the area, such as United States Steel, and the Dresden Atomic Energy Plant.

saint apollonia guild

The Saint Apollonia Guild was founded in Boston over forty years ago. After conferring with and obtaining the approval of his Eminence Cardinal O'Connell, its founders, composed of a dedicated group of prominent Boston dentists, began this charitable organization in the year 1920.

The name chosen for the Guild is significant in that it honors a third-century virgin martyr who, during her persecution, suffered repeated blows which occasioned the loss of all her teeth.

The Guild was started with a charitable purpose in mind. This purpose was to provide dental service for over forty thousand poor and destitute children in the area who would otherwise be without this very necessary health protection.

The organization was introduced at Loyola University's College of Dentistry four years later. In 1928 the Guild went inactive at Loyola until 1934, when it was re-organized.

A profitable increase in the social, intellectual, and religious life of the members of the Guild is the objective of the activities which it sponsors during the course of the year. Due to the other functions in which the Guild participates, it has become one of the most important extra-curricular organizations at the College of Dentistry.

saint luke's guild

In order to facilitate and guarantee the development of the student spiritually and morally, the St. Luke's Guild was organized under the direction of the Rev. John W. Bieri, S.J., and several enthusiastic medical students.

This initial organization, known as the Alpha chapter of the St. Luke's Guild, has progressed due to the moderation and advice of Father Bieri. Another factor in the Guild's rapid growth is the active participation in its regular spiritual exercises and bi-monthly meetings. These meetings aid in attaining the goals of the membership and are usually composed of guest speakers or informative motion pictures interspersed with the business of the organization. Discussions of general interest with regard to the spiritual and moral aspects of the medical profession constitute the remainder of these sessions.

In conscientiously fulfilling the goals of the Guild, the medical student assures himself of a sufficient preparation in dealing with the moral crises of the medical profession.

As a consequence of their practical efficiency in maintaining the aims of the organization, members prepare themselves to become Catholic physicians who adhere to and comply with the tenets of their faith.

student american dental association

Designed after the American Dental Association, the Student A.D.A. of Loyola has a two-fold purpose: to familiarize student members with the purposes and ideals of dentistry; and to give them experience in public speaking, preparing table clinics, and writing on subjects in dentistry.

The general object of the Student A.D.A. of Loyola consists of the promotion of dental education outside the classroom. Each class has four representatives on the executive council, which is the governing body setting the program of events for the year.

Student activities throughout the school year consist of dinner meetings with guest speakers, and the yearly Clinic Day where students display original projects in the field of dentistry. The academic year is brought to an end with the annual Honors Banquet. At this event the bestowing of academic and clinical awards to students takes place.

The Student American Medical Association, open to all medical students, was founded in December, 1950. Its membership is composed of 72 schools located throughout the country. This organization is the largest student medical group in the world.

The purposes of the Association are fourfold: to advance the medical profession, to contribute to the welfare and education of medical students, to familiarize its members with the purposes and ideals of organized medicine, and to prepare them to meet the social and ethical obligations of the medical profession.

The organization meets every month where current medical information is conveyed to the membership and academic difficulties pertaining to medicine are discussed. These meetings are highlighted by motion pictures featuring the various branches of research and the diagnosis and treatment of diseases. The organization also presents guest speakers throughout the school year who relate their medical findings and expound on the objectives of the Student A.M.A.

This academic year was marked with the printing and distribution of medical literature which was circulated to the members of the Loyola Student A.M.A.

Organized at Loyola in 1956, the Veterans Club of Loyola is open to all students and faculty members who have served a minimum of twelve months in the Armed Forces and who possess an honorable discharge. At its regular bi-monthly meetings, the Club conveys information concerning veteran affairs to its members and counsels them in methods of successfully adjusting to university life. The primary purpose of the organization is to acquaint its members with the academic and social program of the school.

Besides meetings, the Club provides social activities for its members, and actively supports Loyola University in its academic, social, and spiritual functions. The Club takes pride in its social events, which include smokers, parties, dances, and an annual Communion Breakfast.

This year the Veterans Club sponsored a bus trip to the Loyola-Marquette basketball game played at Milwaukee. The Club hopes to make this new activity an annual date on their social calendar.

The annual Veteran's Dance held in the spring highlights the Club's social program. At this affair the Veterans Club selects its Miss Veteran who is presented with a bronze combat boot as her award.

Founded at the University of San Francisco in 1936, the Wasmann Biological Society commemorates the Rev. Erich Wasmann, one of the outstanding Jesuit philosopher-scientists in the world. The primary purpose of the organization is to cultivate student research and participation in the biological sciences.

The Loyola chapter of the Society was founded in November, 1940, by the Rev. Charles Wideman, S.J. The success of the organization is confirmed through the various events, both social and academic, that were held throughout the academic school year. Bi-monthly meetings were supplemented with films, seminars, and research papers by the students. The Society's main event is its annual Biology Fair in which students of colleges and high schools in Chicagoland take part.

"The Probe," a newsletter, is the publication of the Society and is directed at informing its members of future events and late news of biology.

The Alumnus magazine is a modern representation of the world of the alumni; and the faculty, administrative, and student efforts of their Alma Mater, Loyola University.

It is published five times a year under the editorship of Nancy K. Gallagher, assisted by Ethel M. LaPash.

The purpose of the magazine is to keep the alumni informed of the University's events and endeavors as well as personal articles which feature prominent and outstanding individuals.

The magazine usually features one lengthy lead story, which portrays the more important aspects of current and general topics of interest. In carrying out its policy, the magazine has widespread appeal. Besides this extended treatment, the magazine also keeps abreast of latest plans with regard to building progress, extension of the University, fund drives, and recent activities.

Action photographs are prominently placed throughout to add to the personableness of the magazine as well as presenting a "you are there" effect. Another feature is the handy calendar, which serves as a listing of the latest University events and other pertinent information.

In order to supply news to alumni all over the world, the Alumnus relies upon a news clip service and the initiative of students who have graduated to provide information for its publication.

The Alumnus is automatically sent to every student who graduates from Loyola and there is no subscription fee involved. It is a service of the University organized for the benefit of its alumni.

Ethel LaPash, Nancy Gallagher, and Janet Smoluch look over the clippings from previous issues of The Alumnus magazine.

PHILIP AUGUSTINE
Editor

Enosis is the official publication of the Loyola Union. Published quarterly, this newsletter is under the direction of the Loyola Union Activities Board and is edited by the members of Pi Delta Epsilon national honorary journalism fraternity.

The purpose of this publication is to acquaint the students, faculty, and administration with the general policies and programs which govern the activities of the Loyola Union. In addition to its limited circulation within the University, Enosis is sent to those unions which are members of the National Association of College Unions. Through this medium, ideas, programs, and policies are exchanged with the 400 other unions associated with this national organization.

Enosis, the Greek word meaning Union, has as its expressed purpose the unification and expression of student thought. Reports of Board meetings are given through a condensation of minutes of meetings which are conducted once each month. Students are asked to submit informative letters for publication.

cadence

When Loyola's original literary magazine, The Loyola Quarterly, assumed the title of Cadence, its editors saw fit to add the phrase, in thought. It is an inconspicuous phrase, but very significant in so far as it points up the general tenor of all Loyola's education endeavors. Loyola University seeks to involve the student in thought. Cadence exists as a channel through which the individual student can express his thoughts and break from purely educational realms into the realms of creative self-expression. Yet this self-expression is of a peculiar kind. It is truly Catholic, that is, inclusive.

Behind the printed pages of Cadence is a tradition that has been expanding for over four hundred years. Conscious that such a tradition can easily accommodate both the radical and the conservative, the student possesses a pen that is free to trace the delicate nuances of human thought and feeling.

This freedom of expression is characteristic of all Loyola publications, but especially of Cadence. It is completely organized (if such a term is applicable to any student publication) and run by students. The students who write for the magazine are not necessarily literary esthetes supremely aware of the maxim that literature is teacher and delight. They are, however, the people who recognize their freedom of thought and take advantage of it by laying it before the public eye.

The most common trait of those who work immediately with the magazine is their interest in harmony. The staff must coordinate a disparate body of material and form it into a whole with at least the appearance of symmetry. Surely, this involves work, but it is a happy sort of work. This joy in work, combined with individuality and freedom of thought, are the true factors which go to make up Cadence.

Paul Amidei and John Stasey eagerly glance through the first issue of Cadence.

The aims of the Loyola News may best be expressed by this statement, which appears in the paper's masthead each week: "With a policy of objectivity and intellectual honesty while striving for good technical quality, the Loyola News is dedicated to the highest ideals of journalism and the University."

From its first issue of the year, aimed at the frosh, to its last, traditionally dedicated to Loyola's graduates, the 1960-61 Loyola News has tried to do just that—to publish news, features and editorials that will be of interest to every Loyola student.

Headlines told of the record freshman enrollment, of the first annual Greek Week, of Jackie Schmelter winning the Miss Loyola contest, of Pow-Wow festivities, and of the Founders Day convocations. February commencement, Blue Key initiation, the Variety Show, Senior Week and the June commencement exercises were some of the big stories of the second semester.

The News also featured exclusive interviews with Comedian Bob Newhart and TV Personality Ed Sullivan in a report on the memorable day when Newhart returned to his Alma Mater to film a sequence for the Ed Sullivan show.

Political activity at Loyola, inspired by the national elections, was reflected in a series of six debates printed in the weekly editions. Each week a member of the Young Republicans and one of the Young Democrats discussed a controversial topic of national importance; medical care for the aged, right-to-work laws, national defense, civil rights, the farm program, and foreign policy. These debates were widely read and were at least partially responsible for the increase in political awareness among Loyola students.

Perhaps the most significant contribution of the News to the student body has been the addition of a more intellectual tone to its fact-filled pages. It is still primarily a newspaper, but this year its columns have offered the student more opportunity for serious thought and understanding.

LOYOLA NEWS

Heading the loyal crew that managed to produce at least four pages of news, features, and editorial comment every week is Tony Ward, Loyola News editor. Tony was aided in his job of classifying news stories as to importance and placement, as well as formulating the general policy of the paper, by the other members of the Editorial Board including David Swinehart, Ellen Miller, Michael Carbine, Edward Pajak, and Rev. John Mentag, moderator.

News Editor was Michael Carbine and he was assisted by John Farrell, Lake Shore News Editor; and Cecile Conrad, Lewis Towers News Editor. In addition, the news staff this year had representatives at three of the University's professional schools—Medical, Dental, and Law in order to provide better coverage of their activities. Another innovation was the weekly "Nite Life" column authored by John Ward of University College.

The outstanding features of this year's newspaper ranged from record reviews by Jack Kramer, to the whimsical satires of Pat Joyce.

Sports Editor Bernard Blau and staff members Mike Dessimoz, Jim Kelly, Bill Merrill, Jerry Ray and Jim Schneider gave LU sports fans top coverage of all activities from fencing to varsity basketball.

Final plaudits go to those students who gave willingly of their time and effort but seldom had the satisfaction of seeing their name in print. Not all of them are pictured on these pages, but they merit the sincere gratitude of the editors for making the task of publishing the News an easier one.

the loyolan

The silver anniversary of the Loyolan marks not only twenty-five years of publication, but is also characterized by innovations visible on every page. Perhaps the most noteworthy feature is the co-editorship, operative in the hope that two heads are more effective than one, and compared ideas will produce a more universally pleasing yearbook.

The thematic art of the division pages is largely the result of the efforts of the annual's new moderator, Bernard C. Cullen, who prepared the rough sketches for those pages and who encouraged the additional use of color throughout the book. This is the main innovation on the 1961 Loyolan.

Finally, because of the expanded utilization of a variety of publications, an entire section has been devoted to them. Each of these publications serves an ever increasing number of students, who depend upon their existence as a sounding board for student opinion and as a reflection of student tastes and interests.

The yearbook is the only compilation of a school year's history; thus its value increases as the years pass by. It serves to furnish the students and the university with a permanent pictorial of the year book form. Working on the annual acquaints the students with the arts of photography, journalism, and various facets of a large university such as Loyola. Therefore the student body becomes better acquainted with their university.

It is hoped that the efforts expended for the 1961 Loyolan will be acknowledge by its pleasurable persual not just this year, but for all of the years to come.

recent decision

Since 1949, "Recent Decisions," a section of the Illinois Bar Journal, has been written and edited by students of the Loyola University School of Law, and published monthly November through June. The Illinois Bar Journal, the official monthly publication of the Illinois Bar Association, is a legal periodical of wide circulation, having a readership of over eight thousand judges, lawyers, and law students.

The current "Recent Decisions" section consists of contemporary significant cases decided by the Illinois and Federal Courts, accompanied by case comments. Each comment is essentially an accurate and informative analysis for practicing attorneys, with reasons to demonstrate why a particular case deserves their attention.

During the past three years, the staff has augmented the routine publishing of cases and comments with the practice of re-publishing past comments and seeing how they correlate with cases subsequently decided.

The addition of these past comments has been well received by the readers of the Illinois Bar Journal and has gained widespread acclaim for the perceptive efforts expended by the students of law at Loyola University.

Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter once said that the "worst public servants are narrow-minded lawyers, and the best are broad-minded lawyers." With this in mind, the students of Loyola's Law School embarked upon the publication of a new quarterly magazine, the Loyola Law Times. The first edition was published in November and sent to all the alumni of the Law School.

Beyond the somewhat bland purpose of establishing contact between alumni and school, the Loyola Law Times is a news magazine devoted to responsible analysis of local, national, and international issues whose solution lies in the application of the Rule of Law. It is dedicated to stimulating the social and cultural consciousness of the lawyer so that he can achieve the highest degree of self-fulfillment. It is the firm belief of the editors of the Law Times that lawyers have a profound responsibility to become part of a creative minority dedicated to constructing a more humane civilization. Lawyers are uniquely qualified by education, experience, and temperament to assume political, cultural, and moral leadership.

The Law Times attempts to assist lawyers in assuming responsibility by such articles as: "Illinois: Consumer Credit Jungle;" "Racism, Law and Politics;" "The Lawyer as an Artist;" "Missing Link in Urban Renewal;" "Legal Skeletons in a Literary Closet;" "Eichman, Eisenburg, and Israel."

The Undergrad is the most recent publication at Loyola. Founded in the fall of 1960, it serves to publicize the social activities of both the Arts and Commerce Councils. By giving these events more school-wide publicity, the staff hopes to create added incentive for student participation in University events.

A monthly publication which presents the views and opinions of the student body, The Undergrad attempts to assist the Loyola News in objectively presenting the highlights of the academic year. The paper serves as a sounding block for questions the students would like to ask the administration.

In order to fulfill the demand to cater to the individual in so voluminous an organization, The Undergrad has striven to portray a clearer picture of the functions and the "whys" behind the policies of the administrative departments of Loyola University.

Pi Delta Epsilon, founded at Syracuse University in 1909, is an honorary fraternity designed to reward the student journalist for his efforts, services, and accomplishments.

In the school year of 1958-59, a group of students on the staffs of the Loyolan, Cadence, and The Loyola News formed an organization to petition Pi Delta Epsilon to establish a chapter at Loyola University. On May 29, 1959, final arrangements were concluded with the national headquarters, and a Loyola chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon was officially established.

To the members of this fraternity has been given the privilege of staffing the quarterly publication of the Union Board, Enosis.

Under the direction of their moderator, the Rev. Thomas J. Bryant, S.J., an annual banquet is given in May for new members.

coaching staff

Former All-American from Notre Dame, George Ireland has posted a record of 107-106 in ten years of coaching basketball at Loyola. He is now in his second year as athletic director. Before coming to Loyola, Mr. Ireland was a highly successful prep coach for 15 years at Marmion Military Academy. This year he was honored by being elected to the NCAA Basketball Rules Committee.

Frank Hogan, after playing for Loyola from 1957 to 1959, has taken over the duties of Loyola's freshman basketball coach. Before enrolling at Loyola, Frank was a cage standout at Loyola Academy.

Don Chalmers has been swimming coach at Loyola for the last twelve years, and, during that time, compiled a record of 89 victories and 63 defeats. In addition, his teams have won the Chicago Intercollegiate swim title seven times. Mr. Chalmers attended East Orange, New Jersey high school where he was on the 1931-32 All-American Team. While at Franklin and Marshall College, he swam on two championship relays.

Jerry Wieland, head cross-country and track coach for eleven years at Loyola, is a graduate of Southern California University. While in high school, Mr. Wieland set the National Catholic League Record in the 220-yard low hurdles. His teams have won the Daily News Relays ten of eleven years and have won at every major relay invitational meet in the country.

Donald Amidei, in his second year as assistant cross-country and track coach at Loyola, is a graduate of DePaul University. He was head coach at St. George High School for eleven years where his teams won the cross-country title seven out of eight years.

A coach at Loyola since 1950, Charles Greenstein has posted an impressive record at the helm of the bowling team. He was a founder of the Midwestern Intercollegiate Bowling Conference which his teams have dominated for many years. As a student at Loyola, he was captain of the bowling team from 1949 to 1950, and in 1948 he bowled a 300 game.

A relative newcomer to the coaching staff is John Stevens, a graduate of DePaul, who has been golf coach at Loyola for three years. Thus far, he has posted a record of ten won and seven lost. He is also assistant pro at the Edgewater Golf Club.

Donald Amidei, George Ireland, Jerome Wieland, and Frank Hogan discuss the strategies to be employed in the following year's athletic activities.

varsity basketball

John Crnokrak (30) out-rebounds All-American Jerry Lucas of Ohio State, as John Havlicek and Mel Nowell of the Buckeyes and Rambler co-captain, Clarence Red, look on. The powerful Ohio team dealt the Ramblers their first loss of the season.

Utilizing the two-platoon system, featuring the famed "Rattler" and "Cobra" divisions, to effect a fast break offense and a pressing defense, the Ramblers racked up an unprecedented 396 points in their initial home stand, as they topped Carroll College, 83-59; Western Ontario, 104-63; Wayne State 118-76; and North Dakota, 91-72.

The Maroon-and-Gold then left the environs of Chicago, travelling to Columbia, Missouri, where they upset the Tigers, 68-62, in a contest decided in the final 18 seconds by the clutch foul shot accuracy of Gerry Harkness.

Defeat was first tasted via the hands of the nation's number one team, Ohio State's Buckeyes, 90-65, in the first of a half dozen Chicago Stadium encounters. Subsequently, the Ramblers beat Loyola of the South, 78-66, before more venturing upon the trail.

After downing Creighton, 86-74, the Ramblers fell to Marquette's Warriors, 83-71, at Milwaukee and to upstart Western Michigan, at Kalamazoo, 87-80.

Loyola lashed Loras, 110-53, breaking the century mark for the third of five times, before meeting and turning back their only Big Ten competitor this season. Coming from behind, the Ramblers overcame a 16 point deficit to beat the Badgers of Wisconsin, 87-79.

Journeying to Ohio, Coach Ireland's crew vanquished Baldwin-Wallace at Berea, Ohio, 74-69, as Clarence Red garnered 23 markers in his best performance of the season, point-wise. Two days later, the Ramblers were upset by Bowling Green at Toledo, when with an 11 point intermission lead the Chicagoans shifted to a slow, ball-control offense. With seconds left, a Falcon tip-in rendered them winners of a 66-65 decision.

Back at the Stadium, Loyola managed a thrill packed upset triumph over Detroit, 83-82. Trailing by three at half, the Ramblers scrapped the taller Titans until Mike Gavin's last second foul shot success spelled victory. Detroit's Dave DeBusschere connected for 35 tallies.

New York was nice, but Loyola lost, thwarted by the Redmen of St. John's, 98-74, at Brooklyn. Fourteen points low at halftime, the Ramblers came on strong in the final stanza, but found the Easterners equal to the challenge.

Underdogs twice, the Maroon-and-Gold split a pair of Chicago Stadium contests, beating Marquette, 81-78, before being defeated by the Bruins of U.C.L.A., 87-82. The victory reversed an earlier decision. Despite a serious height handicap, LU's running, gunning Rambler's hung on until the waning minutes versus the Westerners.

Clarence Red out-rebounds Tom Gywn (40) of Wisconsin as All-American Candidate, Tom Hughbanks (45), stands ready for any unseen mistake.

Tom Hughbanks (45) and Tom Gywn of Wisconsin battle for a rebound with Clarence Red (22) as Herman Hagan and Gerry Harkness (15) elbow their way into position for any possible play. The game with Wisconsin gave Loyola it's first stadium upset, 87-79.

Gerry Harkness (15) blocks Tom Villemure's shot with 1:28 to go to give the Ramblers possession of the ball as they trail by a single point. Jim Mini (23), Co-Captain of Loyola, and All-American Dave DeBusschere of Detroit, watch the action.

Clarence Red (22) and John Crnokrak close in for a rebound as Gerry Harkness blocks Tom Beazaitis's shot. Loyola broke a hundred for the fifth time in an easy victory over JC 108-47.

Clarence Red groans as he receives a knee in a free-for-all in the Marquette game. Herman Hagan (21), Marquette's Don Kojis (44), and Gerry Harkness (15) are ready to enter.

Larry Hughes (35), Alan Ray (14), and John Morgan (13) watch the free throw by Mike Gavin that won the Detroit game in the last 26 seconds of play. The score was LU 83 Detroit 82.

varsity basketball

To the consternation of Loyola fans, the Wildcats from across the Lake once more proved the nemesis to Rambler hopes. For the second time in the campaign, Western Michigan spilled the Chicagoans, this time 107-99, spoiling an otherwise unblemished home slate. Clarence Red's two tallies boosted him into second place among Loyola career scorers.

The Air Force Academy was shot down by LU, 92-63, suffering their worst loss of the season. A devastating second half scoring attack piled 28 points into the Rambler's one point intermission margin. Jim Mini and Red played their final pair of games in Alumni Gym, scoring 32 and 31 points, respectively, as Loyola dumped Washington, 105-77, and John Carroll, 108-47.

Harkness' 24 points in the Carroll contest established him as the individual one-year point-total record-holder, surpassing Jack Kerris' old mark of 488.

All hopes of a post-season tournament bid were shattered by Xaxier in the season finale, as the lads from Cincinnati routed the Ramblers.

Allan Ray (14) crosses his legs for luck in this shot against Western Michigan. Jim Mini blocks out John Hura (21) as Mike Gavin comes up for a possible rebound. LU lost the game 99-107.

Jim Mini (23) scores two points in the Western Michigan game as Sam Key (23) makes an attempt to block Mini's shot.

Benefited by strict tryout sessions, more than a dozen preseason practices, and new maroon and white uniforms, the Ramblers' cheerleaders spurred the basketball team on to one of its most successful seasons. The girls from left to right are Judy Brinkman, Kathy Ireland, Sharon Kerrigan, Mary Ann Harvey, Rhoda Lesko, Diane Anstett, and Sherry Fierst.

Rich Rochelle rebounds in the freshman game against the Jamaco Saints. Les Miller and Don Kasli watch for any mistake.

Les Hunter goes high on the boards and hits for two against Jamaco. This game was the only loss of the freshman team.

The freshman season was marked with much excitement as the team won their first nine games in a row, under the direction of Coach Frank Hogan. The indisputable top thrill came when the squad took on the Jamaco Saints. They stayed in the game the whole way only to lose by three points for their only defeat of the year.

The closest any other opponent came was within 29 points, with the largest margin a 110 to 17 victory over Roosevelt, as the team finished with a 12 won—1 lost record.

Ron Miller gave the outstanding individual performance when he held high scoring Kenny Moses of Wright Junior College to eight points and scored 25 points himself.

In their 13 games, the freshman squad averaged 96 points per game and held their opposition to half of that. They shot 46.9% from the floor, and scored a total of 1,096 points.

The team's success could be attributed to the fact that seven players averaged double figures, with Vic Rouse at the top with 14.1. Rouse also led the rebound department with 122. He was followed closely by Floyd Bosely and Rich Rochelle, with 112 and 108 respectively. Jack Egan took top honors in the free throw department with 39 of 46, for an average of 79.6. Chuck Wood was noted for his offensive and defensive hustle, and for his floor play.

aqua-ramblers

Bernard Blau set a new University record when he finished undefeated in the 200 yard Breast Stroke for the second season in a row. He has not lost in this event since his Freshman year.

Jerry Messineo stretches for the water as he executes an inward dive. Jerry was one of the most consistent winners for the Aqua-Ramblers, and he placed second in the Chicago Intercollegiate swimming and diving Championship.

Although the 1960-61 swimming team, under the direction of Coach Don Chalmers, split even in dual meet competition with six wins and six losses, they won the Chicago Intercollegiate Championship for the seventh time and the Central AAU Championship for the first time in six years.

Prior to the Championships, the Aqua-Ramblers lost several close meets. They were even closer than the scores would indicate, as several meets were won or lost by a flick of the hand. The team seemed to be lacking the sprinter who would have made the won-lost record more impressive.

As the season drew to a close, the team reached its peak. The dual meet victory over Grinnell and winning the Championships were the better meets of the season. In winning the Championships, the squad defeated such outstanding teams as North Central, New Trier Swim Club, and Portage Park.

The strength of this year's team can be seen in the fact that several records were broken. Pete Trummer set a new University record in the 200-yard Individual Medley, and the 400-yard Freestyle Relay of Rick Staveley, Bernard Blau, Larry Kann, and Mike Jolivet registered a new mark.

While Jim Mulcrone did not set any records, he was an outstanding swimmer throughout the year. His time in the 220 and the 440-yard freestyle events was less than a second off the University records. Jerry Messineo dove extremely well in freshman year. He is the best diver Loyola has had in a long time.

With Bill Bishop returning after a year's absence and the addition of a sprinter, the team will definitely increase their victories next season.

The Freestyle Relay of Larry Kann, Pete Trummer, Rick Staveley, and Mike Jolivette pose on a line marker after a hard race.

The Aqua-Ramblers' one-two punch in the 200 yard Butterfly are Rick Stavely and Dennis Spirek as they alternated winning throughout the year. Dennis, however, was a little camera shy.

Coach Don Chalmers congratulates captain Jim Kelly on his fine four year record. Manager John Morrissey is shown tabulating the results. Jim and Bob Dring are the two seniors graduating.

varsity bowling

The bowling team coached by Charles Greenstein finished one of their better seasons in close contention with Notre Dame for the championship of the Midwest Intercollegiate Bowling Conference.

Competing in a strong conference, Jack Brown and Jim Handy led the keglers with averages of 196 and 191 respectively. Jack Brown has the distinction of having bowled one of the best games of the season with a 258 game. Jim Handy led with a three game high of 1072.

The team also led the Conference as they had a three game high of 4899 and an average of about 915.

Coach Charles Greenstein is giving Wally Draus and Jack McGuire instruction on the proper method of holding the ball.

Captain Jack Brown spins one down the alley for another strike. Jack led the team with a 196 average.

cross country

Loyola's Cross Country team this year has begun to show more than ever that they will attain national fame soon. While having only a mediocre record of six and four, several individual performers showed great promise. The early season loss of Jerry Koehler, who was nineteenth in the state as a freshman last year, hampered the team's effort. They, however, did defeat such powerful opponents as Wheaton State, DePaul, and Northwestern in dual meet competition.

In the annual State Cross Country meet held at Eastern Illinois University, the team finished sixth. Freshman Tom O'Hara finished second in the meet. His time was one tenth of a second slower than the winner. This was the closest anyone from Loyola has come to winning the meet since Bob Kelly won it in 1952. Special credit should be given to Sophomore Jim Mooney who finished seventh in the state and was one of the mainstays of the team throughout the season.

varsity track

Coaches Don Amidei and Jerry Wieland have said that this season's track team was one of the best balanced squads that they have ever coached. The prospects for the future look even better.

At the head of the list of stars leading the team to one of the best years in the University's history are miler Tom O'Hara, middle distanceman John Cherone, and sprinter and long jumper Henry White.

At the start of the indoor season, O'Hara showed that he would be a tough man to beat when he won the novice mile with a time of 4:13.7 in the Michigan AAU relays. Later, he lowered the record to 4:08. O'Hara assisted Eddie Alexejum, Tom Flanagan, and Henry White in setting a new record in the mile relay at Michigan.

Rudolph Collins, Ed Alexejum, Tom Flanagan, and Henry White set an American Indoor Record in the half-mile relay with a time of 1:29.5. Henry White ran the 440-leg, followed by Tom Flanagan and Ed Alexejum with 220's. Tom O'Hara ran the final 880 yards to set a new University record in the sprint medley relay.

Peter Fiore and Ray Corbett, along with two other freshmen, Tom O'Hara and John Cherone, were among the top performers for the team. They won the freshman mile relay at the University of Notre Dame with a time of 3:24.9. In addition, Henry White won the 300-yard dash at Notre Dame.

Along with John Cherone and Pete Fiore in the middle distance events are Joe Magno, Ray Corbett, and Dick Bade. Tom Matulis will be among the top milers in the Mid West next year, according to Coach Amidei.

Doug Balen, Dick Cochran, and Jim Prendergas gave strength to the team in the two-mile event. Bob Malcolm led the team in the field events, as he participated in the discus and shotput. Bob Schurer had a monopoly on the hurdling events. However, Loyola had a definite weakness in the field events due to a lack of participants.

The team moved outdoors the first of April, and was just as impressive as it was indoors, if not more so. As usual, they ran faster outdoors and more records were broken. With many freshmen on the team, the outlook for the future is indeed hopeful.

Tom Flanagan defeats Henry White in the 440 at the University of Chicago Fieldhouse with both men running under 50 seconds.

Bob Schurer led the track team in the hurdling events with many victories.

Dick Bade, Jim Dwyer, Sherman Beck, and Dick Dvorchak were members of the Freshman Sprint Medley Relay.

Jim Dwyer, followed by Tom Grossman and Sherman Beck, won the 60 yard dash at the University of Chicago Fieldhouse.

John Cherone and Tom O'Hara are going thru their paces in a practice session at the Lewis Towers Armory. John set a record in the 880 at the Michigan AAU meet with a time of 1:58.2.

Tom O'Hara set a new indoor record when he ran the mile in 4:08.8. He also set a record in the 1000 yard run. He is without a doubt one of the finest freshmen in the country.

A complete renovation was made in the intramural program this year. A separate league for the fraternities was instituted apart from the independents, and the champs of both leagues played each other for the sweep-stake points. Each sport was assigned a certain point value which was totalled at the end of the year to determine the winner.

Joe Scully was elected Chairman of the fraternity board only later to resign. Jack Moustakis was then elected Chairman, and Bernard Blau Vice-Chairman-Secretary. Jim Kelly and Tom Kipsthul were in charge of the independents.

The boards were set up to rule on all protests, arrange the schedules, and, in general, take over all the responsibilities of the league. Mr. Ireland, Athletic Director, was very cooperative in the establishing of the program.

Sports sponsored by the Intramurals were baseball, basketball, football, tennis, and track. The latter two were new this year.

The tennis tournament was the first sport to be initiated in the newly-formed Intramural Program. Paul Gauvreau, representing Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity, walked away with final honors by defeating Dick Oldenberg of Sigma Pi. Jerry Ray, of Tau Kappa Epsilon, took third.

When it came to football, no one could stop the Pi Alph's as they won eight in a row in the fraternity league. The Alpha Deltas and the Tekes followed close behind.

The P.I.D.'s and the Omagons battled for the Independent league championship, with the Omagons earning the right to play the Pi Alphs. The Pi Alphs defeated the Omagons in one of the best contested games in the intramurals by a score of 12-0.

The Cowpunchers and the Viatorians won their respective independent league titles, as did the Pi Alphs in the fraternity league. In the first round of the championship, the Viatorians defeated the Cowpunchers for the right to play the undefeated Pi Alphs. Led by Brothers Pecaut and Snodgrass, the Viatorians beat the Pi Alphs 37 to 30 for the championship.

Swimming, track, and baseball rounded out the rest of the Intramural games.

The Lewis Tower's Intramural Program is set up a little differently than the Lake Shore campus program in that the L. T. arrangement is directed more to the individual at the start of the season and gradually more to the team events. All the events were held at the Chicago Avenue Armory under the direction of senior IM manager Nate Whitmal and Mr. Leonard Zimny.

Barry Jackson was the first winner when he won the football accuracy throw with 37 out of a possible 50. The team of Tom Reckwerdt, Paul Deureaux, Joseph Angelone, and Ed Jaseyezak won the four-man rope climb with a time of 30.4. They were followed closely by the Delta Sigma Pi team of Jim Santo, Rich Carroll, Mike Casserly, and Mike Sullivan.

On Halloween Novelty Day, a wide assortment of activities—singles and some team events—were held, with prizes being awarded to the winners.

The rest of the events were table tennis, badminton, turkey trot, three-man basketball, shuffleboard, horse-shoes, dart tournament, and chess and chinese checkers.

The Women's Intramural Program saw the domination of the Nursing Council and Alpha Tau Delta fall to Stebler Hall. Stebler Hall, captained by Mimi Duggan, was victorious in the volleyball tournament by defeating Nameless 21 to 10. At the end of the regular season, both teams had five victories and one defeat.

Volleyball was succeeded by a table tennis tournament and basketball tournament.

An integral part of the women's program this year was fencing lessons taught by Voldemar Ruus. Fencing was something new and was met with an enthusiastic response.

In addition, the Lewis Towers' girls took gymnastics from Mrs. Erna Wachtel at the Lake Shore Park. Mrs. Coleman, accomplished pianist, enlivened the bending, stretching, and marching with rhythmic numbers. This, too, was new in the women's program.

Marlene Caparelli, director of the intramurals, guided the program to the success that it was.

Freshmen, especially those from out-of-town, "discover" Lake Michigan, Loyola's spectacular campus, during Orientation.

freshman orientation

Freshman students listen attentively to a short presentation of the athletic program given by head-coach George Ireland.

After an orientation lecture, new freshmen students gather in front of the Lake Shore Union.

In its first year of existence, Loyola welcomed thirty-five young men who were interested in obtaining a Jesuit education. On September 21, 1960, seventeen hundred freshmen, male and female, crowded their way into the Loyola Campus Center to begin that process known as Freshman Orientation.

Starting bright and early Wednesday morning, the prospective graduating class of 1964 were praised, frightened, prodded, and informed by numerous members of the faculty concerning drop out rate, spiritual life, sports, and R.O.T.C. After a well-deserved break for lunch, the group broke up into three sections to be put to the task of more listening. In one afternoon they picked up knowledge about a library containing one million volumes, nine fraternities, five sororities, ninety student organizations, dormitory life, seventeen honor societies, student governments, and the Dean of Students office. Finally, refreshments were served, much to the delight of the Frosh.

Thursday found the coeds learning more about the University from the Coed Club. Then, to round out the week, the first half of the freshman class of male students made their annual retreat. After two days of ascetic life, these new students were treated to their first taste of the University social calendar at the Freshman Invitational Dance held Saturday evening. The week was over; classes were yet to begin.

The Very Reverend James F. Maguire, S.J., Dr. Karl Pfuetze, Sister M. Gertrudis, O.S.F., Mr. Mortimer Zimmerman, Miss Helen Lyons, and Miss Gladys Kiniery gather on Friday to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the School of Nursing.

The Silver Anniversary Year of the Loyola University School of Nursing reached its climax during a three-day celebration presented by the faculty, alumnae, and students of the School.

The theme of the program sponsored by the School of Nursing faculty was Education for the Nursing Profession. Dean Gladys Kiniery opened the day with an address of welcome. Rev. Edward B. Rooney, S.J., and Dr. Mary K. Mullone also presented addresses.

A Silver Key to a Golden Future was the concept which brought together the alumnae members for their annual homecoming banquet held in the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel. The Very Rev. James F. Maguire, President of Loyola University, extended congratulations to Dean Kiniery on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the School of Nursing, and told of its great strides, especially in the last decade. Marion Etten, Fund Chairman, presented a large facsimile of a check for $3,940.50 to Miss Kiniery for the school as a Silver Anniversary Gift.

The main speaker of the day was Mrs. Lucile Petry Leone, President of the National League for Nursing and Assistant Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service.

Activities sponsored by the students began with High Mass at the Madonna della Strada Chapel, followed by a breakfast held in the Campus Center. Benediction brought to a close the third day of the celebration.

ifc greek week

The Interfraternity Council of Loyola presented the first fraternity Greek Week to be held in the University's ninety year history in the fall semester of 1960-61.

The General Chairman of Greek Week, Dennis Johnson, the Chairman of the IFC, Michael Morawey, and the other fraternity presidents began the program on a Sunday afternoon with an Orphans' Day. A group of orphans and underprivileged children were treated to a day of games, movies, and prizes.

Sunday evening, a general smoker was held in the Campus Center. Each fraternity passed out information on their various activities, and three speeches were made on the leadership, brotherhood, and scholarship of fraternity men.

During the week, printed booklets were passed out to the entire student body, containing information on this first Greek Week, a list of the nine participating fraternities, and a succinct history of each of them on campus.

Greek Week was highlighted by Olympic games competition. The climax of the Greek Olympiad was the chariot race which was won by the Tekes.

The following Saturday afternoon, Greek athletic events were staged. Among the events were the one-mile relay, the hundred-yard dash, shotput, discus throw, and the javelin toss. The climax of the meet was a chariot race, with fraternity-constructed Greek chariots pulled by fraternity brothers.

That evening, as the final to the first Greek Week, the IFC presented a "Roaring Twenties" dance. The high point of the evening was the presentation of awards by the Dean of Students and the Athletic Department to the winning fraternities in the fields of scholastics and athletics. Alpha Delta Gamma was first in the athletic events. Tau Kappa Epsilon received top honors in the field of scholarship.

Bill Sieger, Pat Conlon, Paul Hoernig, Dennis Johnson, and Jim Szwed spoke to the prospective fraternity men on leadership, scholarship, and fraternalism at the I.F.C. Smoker.

The I.F.C. turned back the clock to present the Roaring Twenties Dance. The evening was highlighted by a Charleston Marathon which gave Fred Green, Carol Fullam, and Wally Welinski a chance to cast off a few inhibitions along with their shoes.

Perhaps the most rewarding part of Greek Week was the party held for the orphans. Games, toys, ice cream, and attention were heaped upon these children by fraternity men and nurses.

The Freshman Retreat, included in orientation week, gives the incoming freshmen a glimpse of the spiritual education which is an integral part of Loyola University's education process.

The Loyola University ROTC Brigade of Cadets enjoyed its best year in the school's history. This year kicked off with cadet participation in Freshman Orientation Week and the recruiting was so successful that it resulted in the largest first year class since 1950.

The annual Military Ball in December was highlighted by the selection of Miss Patricia Dierberger as Military Ball Queen for 1961. Cadet initiative marked the outstanding displays presented at the ROTC Open House in March. Our military fraternity, the Association of the United States Army, capped the spring social season with their Spring dance. The year was successfully concluded with the pageantry of the Presidential Review and the Annual Formal Inspection.

In the field of intercollegiate competition, our outstanding ROTC Drill Team continued to maintain their reputation as one of the nation's top exhibition drill teams. The ROTC Rifle Team enjoyed their best year on record with participation in the Chicagoland ROTC Rifle Team League where they picked up a new trophy for the display case. The chatter of feminine voices was heard for the first time around the department with the formation of the new Loyola University Girl's Rifle Team.

national jesuit colleges debate tournament

Winners of trophies at the Fourth Annual Jesuit College Debate tournament representing Boston College, University of Detroit, Creighton University, Loyola of Chicago, and Rockhurst. Accepting the trophy for Loyola was Tom Dienes.

On Thanksgiving weekend in 1957, the Loyola University Debating Society inaugurated a debate tournament for the twenty-eight North American Jesuit colleges and universities. That year the tournament was held in honor of the Jesuit Centennial in Chicago.

Since 1957 this Jesuit College Debate Tournament has become an annual event. This year, college debaters from one coast to the other convened at Loyola University for six rounds of rugged competition. Those schools attending included: Boston College, Creighton University, University of Detroit, Loyola University of Chicago, Loyola University of Los Angeles, Marquette University, Regis College, Rockhurst College, St. Louis University, University of Scranton, and Xavier University.

The ultimate success of such a tournament rests with the debaters. Each year, they look forward to this rare opportunity to meet with debate colleagues from the nation-wide Jesuit student "community." The debaters find themselves putting forth their best efforts in speaking skills and keen analysis of the debate resolutions in order to win one of the coveted trophies.

Certainly, many lasting friendships have been born at this tournament enabling the participants to develop closer ties with other Jesuit students.

Loyola of Chicago welcomes Loyola of Los Angeles to the Fourth Annual Jesuit College Debate Tournament November 24 and 25, 1960. The tournament was held on Lake Shore Campus.

Lake Shore Campus was transformed into a vast television studio when Ed Sullivan picked Loyola as a portion of his salute to Chicago, telecast in December of 1960.

tv comes to loyola

"A Really Big Shew" came to Loyola University early in October of last year when Ed Sullivan, nationally known television personality, and Bob "button down mind" Newhart, rising young comedian, accompanied by a small brigade of technicians and seemingly endless and endless amounts of television equipment, invaded the Lake Shore campus.

Until two days earlier, the ten minute video tape of Bob Newhart which was to be shown on Ed Sullivan's television show featuring Chicago had been scheduled to be filmed at Mister Kelly's. But at the last moment, the site was changed to Newhart's alma mater, Loyola.

The two prominent personalities arrived on the campus about 12:45 p.m. At a reception immediately following their arrival, Bob Newhart was presented with the Dean's Key for his outstanding work in the entertainment field by Harry L. McCloskey, Dean of Students. Afterwards the activity moved outdoors and several sequences were filmed of Newhart in different locales about the campus.

The bright young comic then returned to the Campus Center where he presented thirty-five minutes of refreshing humor. This was in the form of short monologues, some of which later appeared on Sullivan's November 6th show. It was here at the filming of these skits that many of the Loyola students received their first behind-the-scenes glimpse of the production of a large-scale television show.

Ed Sullivan, Rev. John J. Beckman, S.J., and Bob Newhart stroll across the campus followed by a contingent of eager Loyola students. Bob Newhart captivated a Loyola audience with several of his hilarious, side-splitting routines.

fall frolic

The social highlight of the opening semester is the annual Fall Frolic, the outstanding all-University dance of the year. The Grand Ballroom of the Sheraton Towers Hotel provided the background for the crowning of the queen for 1960-61, Miss Jacqueline Schmelter, candidate of Pi Alpha Lambda fraternity. The ROTC honor guard added an atmosphere of military solemnity to the festivities of the evening.

This year's contest witnessed a revision in the title from Miss Varsity to Miss Loyola, the Hostess of Loyola University. As "sweetheart of Loyola University," the new name is considered a more distinctive and fitting title for her future activities in representing the University.

The use of IBM cards, one with each student's official number, was an innovation designed to assure a well-planned, honestly regulated election.

The new "Miss Loyola," Miss Jackie Schmelter, graciously accepts the crown and scepter of her honored title from Miss Sheila Shanahan.

A symphony of lace and wrought iron forms the setting for the entrance of this year's "Miss Loyola" contestants. The candidates are Cathy Silvagni, Monica Kozak, Bea Bouchonville, Judy Kosloskus, Alexandria Domes, Jackie Schmelter, Darlene O'Brochta, Francine Olech, June Antonucci, Carol Ennis, Ellen Blie, and Patricia McIntyre.

pow - wow weekend

The Loyola Union, in cooperation with the Union Activities Board, sponsored the annual Pow-Wow early in December. The gala festivities began on Friday night with Dan Sorkin presenting the Salty Dogs, Marx and Frigo Trio, and the Griffiths. Immediately following the Jazz Festival, the student body gathered on the athletic field for a bonfire and pep rally.

Saturday highlighted the annual float parade with eighteen organizations competing for the coveted awards. Soon after the float parade a free luncheon was held in the Campus Center. Following the luncheon, the push ball contest was held on the athletic field pitting the freshmen against the sophomores for the possession of the little red keg. The freshmen were victorious and tossed away their green beanies forever.

Saturday evening found everyone not only exhausted, but also tense and excited, as the time for the presentation of the awards grew nearer. Jackie Schmelter, Miss Loyola 1960-61, declared Tau Kappa Epsilon the winner of awards for best float and best fraternity float. Loyola Hall was presented with the award for house decorations.

The Very Reverend James F. Maguire, S.J. extends his congratulations to R. Wendell Harrison, Edward C. Logelin, Mrs. John A. Holabird, Dr. Lon W. Morrey, James H. Gately, William D. Maxwell, and Augustine J. Bowe, distinguished Chicagoans who received Loyola Founder's Day Civic Awards.

Loyola University commemorated its ninetieth anniversary December 12th of last year with an all-day program designed to include prominent Chicagoans, outstanding Loyola alumni, the faculty of the University, and student leaders.

The morning Founders Day Convocation honored eleven Loyola alumni for distinguished service to their profession, the Church, the community, the nation, and the University, with citations presented by the Alumni Association president, John J. Waldron. Civic Awards were presented to seven prominent Chicago citizens who were cited individually by the Reverend Joseph Small for "civic responsibility at its best."

The afternoon Student Presidents' Convocation was devoted to the role of the student leader in the life of the University. After presentation of the flag of 1961, Joseph Gajewski, Lucille Anichini, and Kenneth Printen spoke of student leadership, service, and scholarship, the qualities which determined those eleven students who were to receive medallions.

Completing the Founders Day was the first annual Presidents' Ball, held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel. At the Ball the Very Rev. erend James F. Maguire extended official greetings of the University and Dr. Kenneth Jackson, University Marshal, presented the students who had received awards at the Student Convocation.

ski week

Crystal Mountain, Michigan was the site for the January, 1961 Ski Trip, jointly sponsored by the Coed Club and the Loyola Union. The newly-opened Crystal Mountain Lodge provided a highly congenial and relaxing atmosphere for skiing, card playing, ping pong, dancing, and general conviviality.

The friendliness of the twenty-eight persons on the trip was quite apparent in the camaraderie of the group. Each could share the pain of a sudden spill, the pleasure in a successful downhill run, and the anguish caused by previously unused muscles.

Excellent snow conditions and certified ski instructors enabled all to become well acquainted with the variety of slopes. Spills, laughter, weariness, mischief, and an eternal bus ride were the combination that made the five-day vacation an interlude long remembered.

isc greek week

The week of February 13, 1961 the Intersorority Council of Loyola University held their second annual Greek Week. The concept and methods used in this general rush week were changed significantly from its first year under the direction of Co-chairmen Sandy Domes and Monica Kozak.

Registration of interested freshman woman took place beginning Monday of that week but the first specific function was held Tuesday morning during the 11:30 break at Lewis Towers. A discussion was held for rushees by members of all sororities concerning various phases of sorority life. Miss Mariette LeBlanc, Dean of Women, and Miss Joan Vaccaro, Assistant Dean of Women, spoke to the assemblage. A similar function took place Wednesday at 11:30 on the Lake Shore Campus. That same day, taffy apples were sold to benefit the missions.

Sunday a tea was held at the St. Claire Hotel in which each sorority had a separate room decorated to individual taste. The rushees toured each room viewing skits put on by members of the organizations. Closing the Greek Week members and prospectives gathered to hear an address by Miss LeBlanc.

The members of Delta Zeta Chi show the freshman interested in their sorority the short but illustrious history of the group.

The sisters of Kappa Beta Gamma dress up in frolicky costumes to show prospective freshman the best of their sorority.

Theta Phi Alpha, the largest sorority at Loyola, show many of their trophies to both Lewis Towers and Lake Shore freshmen.

The Intersorority Council Open House provided an opportunity for the sisters of Chi Theta Upsilon to speak to the various interested freshman along with displaying their constitution.

Alpha Tau Delta, professional nursing fraternity, display some incidental pictures of their activities to prospective pledges.

John Dentzer, Troy Ehler, Fred Herzog, Joan Zaharski, Marilyn McKinnon, Al Busa, Jackie Schmelter, Joe Gajewski, and Mary De Orio gather for a picture at the Arts Council Mardi Gras.

Ronald Cincinelli is the center of attraction as he plays the title role of Harpagon in Moliere's "The Miser" presented by Loyola's Curtain Guild at the Community Theater this spring.

Christine Kaub, Margaret DeVito, Bonnie Bertaux, Diane Spellman, Maureen Martin, Mrs. Ernest Glatt, Rosemary Martucci, Barbara Lenard, Diana Pallasch, Lucille Anichini, and Margaret Falk were the fashionable coeds who modeled for the Coed Club Card Party and Fashion Show in the Lake Shore Union.

Tom Phillpot, Jim Alex, Jim Harris, Tom Raclaw, Jim Laurie, Moncia Kozak, Andy Symanski, Lana Doman, and Mike Hartman; officers of the Arts Council, greet the various guests of the Mardi Gras Masque Ball held at the Ambassador West Hotel.

Rev. John McKenzie, S.J., internationally known scholar on Sacred Scripture, gave a series of lectures at Mundelein College.

Rev. Raymond V. Schoder, a member of the Loyola faculty, was one of the lecturers during the presentation of the "Distinguished Professor Lecture Series" presented this past fall.

variety show

"If you want to take the curtain off the ground," participants in the 1961 Variety Show learned, you've got to put in a lot of work. Those who watched the show quite literally found it out, too, after seeing twenty students, led by Fred Green and Rachel Riley, prepare for the performance itself in the show's openings.

With this ingenious prologue, "College Life, U.S.A."—the theme of the tenth annual show—was launched into orbit; and no star was brighter than its director, Jim Rusk. A senior theater major at Northwestern University, he devoted his entire winter academic quarter to directing and staging the acts composing the show, as well as writing the music, lyrics, and choreography for the opening number. Rusk left for New York shortly after the Variety Show to study with Stephen Sondheim, lyricist of West Side Story. As a result of this capable direction and also the stiffer competition involved in landing a spot in the show this year "College Life, U.S.A." appeared as the finest and most professional Variety Show ever seen by Loyolans.

Theta Phi Alpha registered a double win in this year's Variety Show when they walked away with the coveted Organization and "Iggy" Awards with their entertaining satire on L.U.

Richard Oberuc, Rachel Riley, and Fred Green break into the spirited and colorful finale to this year's Variety Show.

Harry the Hipster (Tom Shanahan) lectures to students on the merits of progressive jazz. Like he made the scene so well that he grabbed top honors for the best individual act.

Inspector Fink (Erin Clifford) aids the Alumni Association in its search for prominent (and wealthy) alums; Jan Aumuller, Peggy Geffinger, and Diane Shaffer, all members of the Coed Club.

The tremendous success of this year's Variety Show was due to the untiring efforts of Mike Kutza, Jim Alex, Jim Rusk, Ellen Miller, and Jim Harris. Congratulations, crew!!!

variety show

Exclusive of the opening and closing, ten acts performed. The famed Dental School Choir of Loyola made its annual appearance in the show as a non-competitive act; three individuals and six organizations were selected to appear.

Awards, which heighten the excitement of any performance, were for the same categories as last year with one exception. In addition to the Council trophies for best individual and best organizational acts, traditionally given on Friday night, a new trophy was awarded to the best overall act that evening. As usual, the Loyola Alumni Association made its annual award of the "GGY" trophy to the best act in the show as selected by a panel of alumni judges.

Winners of the sweepstakes this year was Theta Phi Alpha sorority, which walked away with both the "GGY" and the Council trophy as the best organizational act. Entitled "What is College?" the act featured a verse choir balanced by a chorus which provided appropriate background songs.

Smokey Monroe (Monica Kozak) led Briar U. (Kappa Beta Gamma) in an entertaining satire on college athletic recruiting.

This poor little freshman didn't stand a chance until the Tekes helped him through his registration as part of their musical survey of painfully pleasant college memories.

It was a Red Letter Day for the Society for the Advancement of Management when their musical version of The Scarlet Letter won the council award for the best Variety Show act.

Larry Patterson's rendition of "Tonight" from West Side Story was one of the highlights of this year's Variety Show.

Thrilled members of Theta Phi Alpha accept the alumni Iggy Award from John Waldron, president of the Alumni Association.

Sophomore Tom Shanahan was given the best individual act award for his portrayal of "Harry the Hipster."

Copping the trophy for best overall act Friday night was the Society for the Advancement of Management, which presented a musical-comedy version of Nathaniel Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter. Jo Ann Henner starred as Hester Prynne in this first appearance of SAM in the Variety Show.

The other two individual acts, singers Susiette Little and Larry Patterson, delighted audiences with "Without a Song" and "Tonight," respectively.

The Coed Club act, "Alumni Anonymous," featured only four persons. Jan Aumuller, Erin Clifford, Peggy Geffinger, and Diane Shafer appeared as a detective and the alumnae she is hired to hunt down in response to the ever-present call for contributions to dear old Loyola.

Delta Sigma Pi satirized the differences between the two undergraduate campuses in their presentation show, "College Bowl." The show spoofed a number of campus politicians and came to a rousing finish with a commercial for LU-LU bubble gum.

Tau Kappa Epsilon treated the audience to "Music, Martinis and Memories" as two seniors, aided by some magic brew, relived their undergrad years at LU, remembering a class attempting to understand the complex of Freud, the freshman-sophomore tug of war, and freshman orientation.

The final organizational act was Kappa Beta Gamma's offering, "The Smokey Monroe Story," a satire on collegiate recruiting practices.

Following the judging on both evenings was the show's rousing finale, "El Sombrero" from the Broadway hit Wildcat.

Producer of the show was Jim Harris, junior class president of the College of Arts and Sciences. The assistant producer was Jim Alex of LT, junior class vice-president. Many others spent long hours laboring on the show, including Ellen Miller, costumes; Mike Kutza, sets; Bob Moocha, stage manager and props; Al Busa, lights; and Dan Trozak, sound. The School of Nursing handled publicity, for which Kathy Hawkins was chairman; and Don Barrett of the College of Commerce served as business manager.

From a most inauspicious start in the Union House before an audience of a few dozen ten years ago, to a crowd of over two thousand in the Mundelein Auditorium—this is the Variety Show success story, and its most recent chapter has been its most glorious.

How does one sing "Without a Song"? Suzette Little shows the audience that it can be done.

Fred Green talks Rachel Riley into staying in the show after she complains about it being too much work and not much fun.

Downtown Delta Sigs had a field day satirizing Lake Shore activities and events in their Lu-Lu College Bowl Quiz.

european trip

Last June, a group of approximately forty Loyolans boarded the plane which was to take them on a twelve-week, ten-country tour of Europe. Led by Dr. Michael Fink, tour director, the eager travelers wrote their own version of Innocents Abroad as they made their way through England, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland, Spain, and a handful of other countries before returning to Chicago, September 1.

Highlights of the tour included a public audience with His Holiness Pope John XXIII, and a private audience with President Gronchi of Italy.

In Oberammergau the tourists view a performance of the world-famous Passion Play, and while in Munich they managed to attend a session of the Eucharistic Congress.

Their travel bus took the Loyolans to a number of special musical events: they attended the famous Salzburg festival; they witnessed a performance of Samson and Delilah by the Paris Opera; they saw Aida performed in an ancient open-air amphitheatre in Verone, Italy; and they attended the Mozart festival in Aix-en-Provence.

Members of the tour saw the Stratford players present The Merchant of Venice at the beginning of the trip, and just before leaving for home, they saw the opening ceremonies of the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome.

Loyola faculty members on the tour were: the Rev. John Felice, S.J.; the Rev. Francis Grollig, S.J.; Dr. Boris Spiroff; and Miss Rosemary Donatelli.

The returning travelers cleared customs with little trouble, and they now have watches, perfumes, sweaters, microscopes, jewelry—as well as many happy memories—to remind them of their summer in Europe.

Europe bound Loyola students and friends board a United DC-6 Mainliner for New York where they will catch an Israel Airlines plane for a twelve-week vacation in far reaching places.

The Mayor of Italy is surrounded by admiring Loyolans.

Miss Rosemary Donatelli is greeted by President Gronchi in the president's chamber.

The European group visits Quirinale, the palace of the president of Italy and seem to be amazed at the luxury of the hall.

commencement

Twice each year Loyola University takes time to honor the graduates of its nine schools and colleges in its traditional commencement exercises.

At the ninety-first annual commencement last February 1, almost 400 students walked across the stage of the Granada Theater to receive their degrees from the hand of the Very Rev. James F. Maguire, University President. The group included: 25 candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing; 51 for the Bachelor of Science in Commerce; a total of 54 University College students receiving Bachelor degrees; 109 degrees conferred on students in the College of Arts and Sciences; and a total of 162 candidates for degrees of Master of Social and Industrial Relations, Master of Education, Master of Science, Master of Arts, Doctor of Science, and Doctor of Philosophy.

Loyola conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Law upon three candidates: the Right Reverend Monsignor John W. Barrett, Director of Archdiocese Hospitals; Mother Mary Gerald, O. P., Mother General of the Dominican sisters of Adrian, Michigan; and William J. Sinek, Chairman of the City Products Corporation.

Principal speaker for the February commencement was Theodore A. Distler, Executive Director of the American Association of Colleges.

On June 13, Loyola made history by changing the location of the graduation exercises from the Granada Theater to the auditorium of Chicago's new exposition hall, McCormick Place. Present plans are to hold all future commencements in the lakefront center.

Because of the vast seating capacity of the auditorium (5,000), Loyola graduates were able, for the first time, to distribute an unlimited number of invitations to the ceremonies.

Following the University-wide exercise, a formal reception was held for the approximately 800 graduates, their families and guests, in the handsomely appointed V.I.P. room overlooking Lake Michigan.

Ceremonies are annually supervised by members of the commencement committee, with the University marshal presiding. Members of Blue Key National Honor Fraternity served as ushers, and in June the members of Circumference, Women's Leadership Honor Sorority, also assisted.

The Very Rev. James F. Maguire, president of Loyola University, addresses the convocation at the mid-year graduation held for the final time at the Granada Theater near Lake Shore.

Elizabeth McCann, registrar of the university, presents the degree of Bachelor of Science in Social Science to Michael Flynn, as Very Rev. James F. Maguire prepares to congratulate him.

The stage of the Granada Theater is illuminated from the chandeliers hanging from the balcony as graduates prepare to receive their diploma.

Graduates enter the Madonna della Strada Chapel for the Baccalaureate Services commencing the June Graduation.

Some of the parents and friends of the graduates anxiously await the commencement exercises, while others page through the attractive program.

editor's page

Considering the magnitude of the task undertaken only last September, we, the editors of the 1961 Loyolan witness its publication with mixed emotions of pride, relief, and satisfaction. We take pride in its appearance, for we feel that the book mirrors the activities and functions of the University more artistically than ever before; relief because the anxious moments and long hours of labor have finally borne fruit; and satisfaction because our plans have materialized into the reality for which we have striven.

But the 1961 Loyolan is not simply the product of the editors. Were it not for the ever-present, loyal, and hard working staff, the annual would never have reached publication.

The moderator of this annual, Mr. Bernard W. Cullen, a quiet and thought-provoking gentleman, is most responsible for the many artistic touches throughout the book. His assistance in redrawing layouts and sizing pictures, and his general fatherly advice are deeply appreciated by not only the editors, but also the entire staff.

The old standby of the Loyolan, as everyone knows, is Rev. Thomas J. Bryant, S.J. Again, without his help there would be no Loyolan. With over 1000 photographs in this annual, Father Bryant kept himself busy not only taking 75% of these pictures but also developing the same amount. A more dedicated member of the staff could not be found.

An Irish sense of humor which made the many long hours far less tedious was provided by our representative from Hunter Publishing Company, Bill O'Connor. A great share of our debt of gratitude goes to him.

Dean Harry McCloskey also played a vital inspirational role in this year's annual. Always ready to assist in any capacity, Dean McCloskey has always attested a deep interest in the Loyolan.

Students, too, played a major role in the Loyolan's publication. Because every editor must have an assistant to aid in his work, we had ours in the person of Mike McConnell. His primary task was to know how to do everything involved in the yearbook's production, while lacking the title reserved to ourselves.

Writing copy for an annual is a job no one can truly appreciate until he has tried to do it. Making shopworn phrases sound fresh and original was an assignment awarded to Fred Green. This was done without question, but Fred also assisted the editors in many varied and multiple manners apart from his specific task.

Henry Wisniewski scheduled pictures for the yearbook, a job which demands not only time but also a generous amount of patience. Very few thanks and very many no's characterize this editorial position on the Loyolan.

Under all pictures are found captions, some merely listing those in the pictures, others hopefully descriptive of the particular scenes. Responsibility for the accuracy of the captions lies with Al Busa, who took fiendish delight in his task. Fitting names to faces was hard work, although titling incidental shots provided us with much amusement.

To the senior editors, Lori Glatt and Alice Farrell, goes a large measure of gratitude. They alone know the difficulties involved in securing degrees to coincide with graduate's pictures and in compiling senior activity sheets into a readable whole.

The sports section was the work of Butch Blau, who knows well the members of the athletic department and who employed his knowledge of Loyola sports with systematic accuracy.

General business and selling of the Loyolan was taken care of by Dick Lucas and Marty Klest, along with the DOD's, and a few more Lewis Towers enthusiasts. Without their joint effort, all the rest of our work would be in vain.

These above mentioned students include only a small part of the staff of the 1961 Loyolan. We wish we could thank everyone here in this short space, but that would be impossible, so we must limit ourselves to the editorial staff. For the people who were not mentioned never let it enter your mind that your work is not appreciated. You also may look with pride on this year's Loyolan and truthfully state that you were an integral part in its makeup.

Mary Lee Cullen, editor of the photography index; and Kevin Martin, of the copy writing staff, work on their respective tasks as the deadline for the 1961 Loyolan swiftly approaches.

epilogue from the moderators

We first extend sincerest apologies to our students, faculty, administrators, and public for our errors of omission or commission. If we left your picture out, misspelled your name, or incorrectly described your activity, we did it unintentionally.

From our printer, the Hunter Publishing Company, especially Jim Hunter, we received understanding, co-operation, and excellent assistance. The S. K. Smith Company made our covers. Their representative Mr. Richard Dwyer, was most helpful.

A few words about our photographers—the book is chiefly their work. Mr. Austen Field did the portraits of most of the graduating coeds and some of the administrators. The Marshall Studio, and especially Mr. Anthony Communale, photographed most of the men graduates and some of the faculty members. Jim Kilcoyne took many of the group pictures and incidentals. Steve O'Shaughnessy, our favorite student photographer, is responsible for about 150 of the better pictures in the book. A very special thanks is due to Rev. Robert Kopek, S.J., who prepared the entire section on West Baden College. Picture credits are due to the Marshall Field Enterprises and the Chicago Tribune.

The innovation of artwork was made possible chiefly through the efforts of Ralph Van Dyke, one of the best artists in the area. His talent for bringing the ideas of the staff into the reality of a yearbook is one which is found in very few people.

To the officials of the Illinois Catholic Women's Club we owe immense thanks for their kindness in letting us use club facilities for many of the Lewis Towers pictures. The various deans aided us in a similar way. We received much needed assistance from the various secretaries in arranging for the pictures—especially Miss Ellen Nomura of the Dental School; Miss Eugenia Kribales of the Law School; and Miss Virginia O'Rourke of the School of Social Work.

Finally, to our co-editors, Joseph Scully and Judith Kobnke, we extend thanks and congratulations for a very efficient job. The 1961 Loyolan will speak for their talents and efforts.

Rev. Thomas J. Bryant, S.J.

Steve O'Shaughnessy, the finest student photographer at Loyola, prepares to shoot one of his many pictures for the '61 Loyolan.
